FIERCE BATTLE ON AT TAMPICO

LAST ASSAULT ON CITY AFTER ALL NIGHT FIGHT

VERA CRUZ, May 11.—General Pablo Gonzales, the hero of Monterey, began at daybreak, what is believed will be the final assault of Tampico, With 6,000 men, 12 modern field pieces and modern French ammunition captured from the Federals at Torreon, and 200 field guns he is besieging General Zargosa and his 4,000 defenders on three sides and the fall of the city is imminent. All night long the battle raged by the light of blazing oil tanks.

A large part of the city itself is on fire and the 16,000 inhabitants are reported in desperate straits. Many are starving and others stricken with smallpox.

When fighting was resumed it was felt that the city could not long withstand the tremendous attack.

The rebels had awaited the arrival of considerable reinforcements of troops and artillery.

Guided by the light of the blazing oil tanks, which had been fired either by stray shots or by soldiers assigned to that daring task, the rebel artillerymen hurled shell after shell from their score of heavy field guns into General Zaragoza's strongly-intrenched position.

The fortifications were thrown up in the centre of the city. The shrapnel was of the French type, fired from guns captured by the Constitutionalist, General Gonsales, at Monterey. It is said to have burst with death-dealing precision over the breastworks of the defenders, in sharp contrast to the comparative ineffectiveness of the home-made shells used by Villa in the siege of Torreon.

The rebels attacked the city on three sides.

Shrapnel was used for the purpose of opening up a path for the rebel infantry.

The Waters-Pierce oil refinery is said to have been set on fire.

American refugees aboard foreign ships in the harbor early reported capitulation or the capture of the city by storm as imminent.

The three Federal gunboats, Vera Cruz, Zaragoza and Bravo, moored to wharves at the water front, aided in the defence of the city, but lost much of their effectiveness through occupying this position, as they were unable to bring all their guns to bear at the same time.

The coming of General Gonsales, one of Villa's most able leaders, and the taker of Monterey, to the relief of General Caballero, was believed to spell the beginning of the end.

General Gonsales announced he would shell the gunboats, silence them and then bombard the city. He gave foreigners ample time to retire to the ships in the harbor.

Tampico is next to Vera Cruz, Mexico's most important seaport.

The rebels have especially desired it, as they expect it will enable them to receive arms from the sea, despite the American land embargo, and will also permit them to raise a considerable fund by shipping and selling cotton captured by Villa at the fall of Torreon, and said to be worth millions of dollars.

See Pages 8 and 9 for additional Mexican news.

REBELS BOMBARD CITY

President's Tribute to the Dead of Vera Cruz

NEW YORK, May 11.—President Wilson's address, delivered today in eulogy of the Americans killed at Vera Cruz, was as follows:

I know that the feelings which characterize all who stand about me and the whole nation at this hour are not feelings which can be suitably expressed in terms of attempted oratory or eloquence. They are things too deep for ordinary speech.

For my own part, I have a singular mixture of feelings. The feeling that is uppermost is one of profound grief that these lads should have had to go to their death, and yet there is mixed with that grief a pride that they should have gone as they did, and if I may say it out of my heart, a touch of envy of those who were permitted so quietly, so nobly, to do their duty.

Have you thought of it, men, here is the roster of the navy, the list of the men, officers and enlisted men and marines, and suddenly there swim nineteen stars out of the list, men who have suddenly gone into a firmament of memory, where we shall always see their names shine; not because they called upon us to admire them, but because they served us without asking any questions, and in the performance of a duty which is laid upon us as well as upon them.

Duty is not an uncommon thing, gentlemen. Men are performing it in the ordinary walks of life all around us all the time, and they are making great sacrifices to perform it. What gives men like these peculiar distinction is not merely that they did their duty, but that their duty had nothing to do with them or their own personal and peculiar interests. They did not give their lives for themselves. They gave their lives for us, because we called upon them as a nation to perform an unexpected duty.

That is the way in which men grow distinguished, and that is the only way, by serving somebody else than themselves. And what greater thing could you serve than a nation such as this we love and are proud of?

Are you sorry for these lads? Are you sorry for the way they will be remembered? Does it not quicken your pulses to think of the list of them?

I hope to God none of you may join the list, but if you do, you will join an immortal company.

So, while we are profoundly sorrowful, and while there goes out of our heart very deep and affectionate sympathy for the friends and relatives of these lads, who for the rest of their lives shall mourn them, though with a touch of pride, we know why we do not go away from this occasion cast down, but with our heads lifted and our eyes on the future of this country with absolute confidence of how it will be worked out; not only upon the mere vague future of this country, but the immediate future.

We have gone down to Mexico to serve mankind, if we can find out the way. We do not want to fight the Mexicans. We want to serve the Mexicans if we can, because we know how we would like to be free and how we would like to be served if there were friends standing by ready to serve us.

A war of aggression is not a war in which it is a proud thing to die, but a war of service is a thing in which it is a proud thing to die.

Notice that these men were of our blood. I mean of our American blood, which is not drawn from any one country, which is not drawn from any one stock, which is not drawn from any one language of the modern world, but free men everywhere have sent their sons and their brothers and their daughters to this country in order to make that great compounded nation which consists of all the sturdy elements, of all the best elements of the whole globe.

I listen again to the list with a profound interest at the mixture of the names, for the names bear the marks of the several national stocks from which these men came.

But they are not Irishmen, Germans or Frenchmen or Hebrews any more. They were not when they went to Vera Cruz; they were Americans, every one of them, and with no difference in their Americanism because of the stock from which they came. Therefore, they were in a peculiar sense of our blood, and they proved it by showing that they were of our spirit, that no matter what their derivation, no matter where their people came from, they thought and wished and did things that were American; and the flag under which they served was a flag in which all the blood of mankind is united to make a free nation.

War, gentlemen, is only a sort of dramatic representation, a sort of dramatic symbol of a thousand forms of duty.

I never went into battle; I never was under fire; but I fancy that there are some things just as hard to do as to go under fire. I fancy that it is just as hard to do your duty when me are sneering at you as when they are shooting at you. When they shoot at you they can only take your natural life.

When they sneer at you, they can wound your heart, and men who are brave enough, steadfast enough, steady in their principles enough, to go about their duty with regard to their fellowmen, no matter whether there are hisses or cheers, men who can do what Rudyard Kipling in one of his poems wrote: "Meet with triumph and disaster, and treat those two impostors just the same," are men for a nation to be proud of. Morally speaking, disaster and triumph are impostors. The cheers of the moment are not what a man ought to think about, but the verdict of his conscience and of the consciences of mankind.

So when I look at you I feel as if I also, and we all, were enlisted men. Not enlisted in your particular branch of the service, but enlisted to serve the country, no matter what may come, though we may waste our lives in the arduous endeavor.

We are expected to put the utmost energy of every power that have into the service of our fellow men, never sparing ourselves, not condescending to think of what is going to happen to ourselves, but ready if need be to go to the utter length of complete self-sacrifice.

As I stand and look at you today and think of these spirits that have gone from us, I know that the road is clearer for the future. These boys have shown us the way, and it is easier to walk on it because they have gone before and shown us how. May God grant to all of us that vision of patriotic service which here, in solemnity and grief and pride, is born in upon our hearts and consciences.

PRESIDENT AND PEOPLE HONOR MEXICO HEROES

By WILLIAM NELSON TAFT,
Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD, N. Y., May 11.—President Wilson, speaking for the nation, today, expressed the deepest grief over the death of the marines and sailors who fell at Vera Cruz. At the same time he said that he personally felt a profound pride that they had died as they had, and "a sort of envy for those permitted to do their duty so quietly and so well."

The presidential tribute was delivered in the presence of fifty thousand persons at the funeral services held here over the bodies of the seventeen heroes brought to port on the funeral ship Montana.

The impressive ceremonies, the silent greeting of the cortege as it passed through the lanes of thousands of persons formed a patriotic demonstration of mourning without parallel since the war days of 1898.

COFFINS ARRIVE IN STATE.

Seventeen flag-draped coffins, containing the bodies of those first to die fighting for the Stars and Stripes in the present Mexican trouble, were brought in solemn state aboard a United States cruiser to this port, and today their grateful countrymen, from the chief executive down to the humblest citizen, did homage to their memory.

Early today the seamen of the cruiser Montana silently lowered the coffins one by one over the ship's side to tugs on which they were brought ashore to be placed on gun caissons for the military funeral. Battey Park was black with a crowd, aggregating many thousands, long before the hour set for the opening ceremonies. The day was warm, and the hot sun shining through a thin mist gave an uncomfortable touch of humidity.

FLAG-COVERED CASKETS.

As the caskets, each covered with a great starry flag, were placed on the pier, men, women and children packed closely the police lines and watched silently, and reverently with bared heads.

All of the bodies had been transferred to the pier before Secretary of the Navy Daniels, with his staff, left the yacht Mayflower, which escorted the funeral ship from Virginia Capes to the port of New York. The landing of Secretary Daniels was the signal for the opening of the ceremonies.

President Wilson, accompanied by his private secretary, Joseph Tumulty, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, arrived over the Pennsylvania Railroad from Washington at 7:13 o'clock. An automobile met the presidential party at the Pennsylvania station, and Mr. Wilson was taken to the home of his friend, Colonel E. M. House, for breakfast.

WILSON CHANGES PLANS.

It was announced that Mr. Wilson had changed his plans for the day. Instead of going direct to the Brooklyn Navy Yard as he originally intended, he said he would review the funeral cortege from one of the stands in front of City Hall, going

Word Pictures Of Ideal Apartments

Instead of wearisome miles of walking in search of an apartment here's a newer, quicker, better way:

Sit down in a comfortable easy chair and choose among the offerings in the American's columns headed "Apartments."

In these columns are word-pictures of the choicest home offerings in Boston. Locations, prices and attractive features are accurately told.

Mentally you can sift these down to the one which meets your requirements. And then investigation is a simple matter.

If, by any chance, your kind of apartment is not advertised today, write a description of it and run an ad yourself tomorrow.

When yours is written, leave it with any of the American's "Want Ad" Stations, the branch office at 264 Washington Street, main office at 80 Summer Street, or

The said that decisive action on the matter would be taken by the Hurlingham committee later in the day.

U. S. Consul Ends Life in Manchuria

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 11.—United States Consul Southard P. Warner, who has been stationed here since August, 1912, committed suicide on Sunday in the hospital where he had been undergoing treatment for some time. Mr. Warner was thirty-three years old and entered the consular service in 1906.

GOMPERS WINS FREEDOM FROM U. S. SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Samuel Gompers, president; John Mitchell, formerly second vice-president and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, won a sweeping victory in the Supreme Court of the United States today, when the court set aside the sentences imposed on the labor leaders in the contempt proceedings growing out of the Bucks Stove and Range Company cases.

Mitchell, Gompers and Morrison were charged with contempt of court in disobeying the injunction of the United States Court of the District of Columbia which forbade them maintaining a boycott of the Buck Stove & Range Company of St. Louis.

The boycott grew out of labor troubles with the company. The company went to court and secured an injunction forbidding the maintenance of a boycott. Thereafter, it was charged, the boycott was maintained by publications in the Federationist, a labor paper.

The case had become the most famous labor case the United States has ever known. There have been numerous appeals, re-hearings, re-arguments and other court proceedings. The three were once sentenced to jail for contempt.

Silliman Safe.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Consul General Hanna at Saltillo reported to the State Department today that Vice Consul Silliman has been liberated from prison near Saltillo. He based his report on a statement by a refugee who said he was imprisoned near the place where Silliman was held.

Mary B. Horne Loses Watertown Case

Mary B. Horne, dramatist of some of Crawford's novels, lost her petition against the town of Watertown when Judge Wait ruled against her in the Superior Court today. She claimed water was leaking from the town water mains into her cellar. The town claimed the water was "ground water" forced in by the Charles River dam.

REPORT TAMPICO HAS FALLEN.

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—Dispatches just received at the Constitutionalists headquarters here say that the rebels captured Tampico at 11 o'clock.

CRIPPLED LINER MAKES PORT.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Badly crippled from storms, the Italian steamer Europa crept into port today barely able to make eight knots an hour. During a storm on May 5, the ship lost two blades of her starboard propeller and one blade of her port propeller.

PROVIDENCE MAN DEAD FROM BLOW.

PROVIDENCE, May 11.—Philip Lougherty, 43, died today from a fractured skull. According to the police he was knocked down on Richmond street. William Gilday was arrested.

BECKER WAS BRAINS OF GUNMEN'S DEATH PLOT, DECLARES WHITMAN

NEW YORK, May 11.—Painting ex-Lieutenant Charles A. Becker as the brains of the gang of gunmen that murdered Herman Rosenthal, District Attorney Whitman today branded the former police official as a "scheming, plotting assassin."

The District Attorney's opening address to the jury was a scathing denunciation of the defendant on trial for second time for the murder. Mr. Whitman excoriated the former head of the "strong arm squad," telling in detail the story of the murder of Rosenthal and setting forth the State's theory of Becker's connection with the crime.

He cited instance after instance to show that the police officer was the brains of the plot to kill the gambler and that no one else among those concerned would have had sufficient motive for putting Rosenthal out of the way.

PICTURES DEATH SCENE.

Whitman pictured graphically the scene in front of the Hotel Metropole, when the four gunmen drove up in a gray murder car, called Rosenthal to the door and then shot him down. The three gamblers, "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon, Whitman said, "were like Rosenthal, but "there is proof," he added, "to show that Rosenthal could injure these three men living, and there is nothing to show that they themselves could profit by his death.

"They were the agents, the immediate emissaries, the middlemen, the brokers in human life, who obtained for one man who had real murder in his head the four villainous creatures who were to carry out the fiendish work which he, and he alone, conceived and compelled."

The District Attorney declared the State would prove that Becker was a partner of Rosenthal in gambling operations; that the two had quarrelled and that Becker had secured the service of four gunmen to put Rosenthal out of the way; that immediately after the escape of the murderers Rose notified Becker that "the job has been done;" that Becker told Rose not to worry as he would "come right down;" that Becker went to the station, where Rosenthal's body was lying, that there was no reason for his going there; that the station was not his headquarters; that on leaving the station, Becker met Webber and Rose and told them that there was nothing whatever to fear.

POWERFUL MOTIVE.

In conclusion the District Attorney said to the jury:

"Now, gentlemen, I believe we can prove not only beyond a reasonable doubt, but beyond any possible doubt, all that I have indicated to you. I know that we can show a powerful motive for the murder of Rosenthal existed in the heart and mind of the prisoner at the bar, such a motive as no one else living could have.

"And the people of this State, represented by the District Attorney of this county, claim that, in spite of the fact that Becker may not have been personally at the scene of the killing, notwithstanding the fact that it was not his hand that held the fatal weapon, conceding, of course, that others are guilty of the awful crime of deliberately slaying human life, that the directing will and the power behind this assassination was the defendant at the bar; that while the others were as truly instruments as were the pistols from which fatal bullets flew—the man who really accomplished the murder of Herman Rosenthal was Charles Becker, lieutenant of the police of the city of New York."

One juror, sworn in as the eleventh juror, was challenged by the defence after he had entered the jury box and was excused by Justice Seabury. The lawyers for the defence reconsidered their action and Sprock was again accepted. The box was then filled by the selection of Frederick A. Barrett, a consulting engineer.

The jury was immediately sworn.

Edison Forbids Use of Cigarettes

CIGARETTES
NOT TOLERATED!
They Dull the Brain!

NEW YORK, May 11.—This sign greeted the 4,700 employes of the Edison industries at West Orange when they went to work today. At the request of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison analyzed twenty brands of cigarettes. The tobacco, he says, was of varying quality, but all the paper contained poison.

In the Ford factories a like notice will be posted. Mr. Edison said:

"The cigarette poison attacks the folds of the brain and works havoc with a man's mental activity. Evaristo Madero tells me his people, the Mexicans, are inveterate cigarette smokers. That is why they are not clear-headed."

Says Chinese Carry Their Gods in Autos

"The Chinese are carrying their Gods in automobiles," is what Rev. Arthur J. Brown, D. D., of New York told the ministers today at the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston in Park Street Church.

"Then when these Chinese get tired of their idols," he said, "they take them and dump them from their automobiles and give them a bath in the river."

Tells of Move to Help the Lepers

W. M. Danner, secretary of Mission to Lepers, addressed the Boston ministers today in Park Street Church upon the work being done all over the world for lepers. "There are 500 lepers in the United States," he said. "There are a few in Massachusetts, many more in California, and Louisiana. We are trying to segregate them in various parts of the world.

Army Recruits for One-Year Term

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 11.—Fort Constitution, New Castle, has received orders from Washington making it a recruiting rendezvous for this section. The authorities are instructed to enlist men, holding out the inducement that in case war is not declared the men will be mustered out. The terms of enlistment will not exceed a year.

Real Milky Way on Boylston Street

Boylston street, near Berkeley street, resembled a Great White Way today at noon, when a milk wagon, attempting to turn around, tipped over, spilling many gallons of milk into the street. The driver, when asked by a policeman what he was going to do about it, replied, "Well, what's the use of crying over spilled milk."

LAWRENCE TO EXPOSE B. & M. JUGGLING DEAL

WASHINGTON, May 11.—"I am placed on the stand in the New Haven railroad investigation, as I expect to be, I will tell the truth concerning the chicanery of these railroad stock jugglers."

This statement today was made by W. B. Lawrence of Medford, Mass., who represents the estate of General Samuel C. Lawrence, the largest single holder of Boston & Maine stock. Mr. Lawrence arrived in Washington in response to a subpoena for the commission in the New Haven investigation.

"The New Haven officials have been economical of the truth to the point of parsimony," said Mr. Lawrence, prior to the opening of today's session of the inquiry.

"The New Haven purchased the 109,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock and held them for two years in defiance of law.

"Some of the legal officials of Massachusetts were subsidized until they were officially dead, officially dumb and nearly motionless. If these men are not guilty of crime, there is no such thing as crime."

Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury James F. Curtis, who was in charge of customs under the Taft administration, also arrived in answer to a subpoena in connection with the investigation.

Fishing Schooner 'Gladys and Nellie' Reports 2 Men Lost

The fishing schooner "Gladys and Nellie" came into the Fish Wharf at South Boston today and reported two lost off Sankaty Head in the fog.

One, Wilbur Stoddard, , was drowned when the schooner ran down his dory in the fog. The dory was not sunk, but it is supposed he was knocked out by the schooner's sides and sank. Ambrose Griffiths in his dory was lost in the fog.

Stoddard lived in East Boston; Griffiths in Cambridge. A strange crane alighted on the ship and was brought back to it with the Municipal Aviary at Franklin Park.

Seek Whereabouts of Dorchester Boy

Mrs. Lepha Sherman of Dorchester is seeking information as to the whereabouts of her son, J. M. Sherman, nineteen years old, who has been missing since February 27. He was employed by Tyler Truesdell of Shelburne, but on February 27 withdrew his savings from the Shelburne Bank and disappeared. An information concerning him should be sent to Miss C. C. Weeks, an aunt, care of Miss Frances Hubley, No. 71 Boylston street, Boston.

City News in a Nutshell

Dr. Little Scores Wilson on Mexico

The Wilson administration was severely criticised today at a meeting of the ministers of Greater Boston in Park Street Church by the Rev. Arthur Little, D. D., of Dorchester. Dr. Little commented on the seventeen young lives given in the service of this country, and declared hostilities were absolutely unnecessary.

NAWN SILENT ON JURY PROBE OF TUNNEL WORK

Henry P. Nawn, president of the Hugh Nawn Contracting Company, which built the Cambridge subway, refused today to discuss the coming Grand Jury probe of the subway contracts.

The Sunday AMERICAN exclusively announced that the Middlesex Grand Jury, sitting May 25, will summon General William A. Bancroft, Henry P. Nawn, H. L. Wilson, Charles S. Sergeant, J. Otis Wardwell and others to investigate the contracts covering the construction of the subway.

District Attorney Corcoran believes many strange transacti . . . will be brought to light. He believes that $659,303.66 was paid the Hugh Nawn Contracting Company for the services of Henry P. Nawn. Mr. Nawn when asked today to discuss the matter said:

"The AMERICAN contained a very fair statement of the situation. It is too early for me to say anything in view of the fact that the Grand Jury is contemplating some action in the matter. When the proper time comes, following the Grand Jury action, I shall be only too glad to talk."

"Is it true that you received a salary of about $650,000 for thirty-one months' work?"

He laughed. "That's a pretty good salary, isn't it? Fellow wouldn't have to have very many like that to retire, would he? I'd rather let that come out in the investigation."

Flier Loops Loop 15 Times as Air Adieu

PARIS, May 11.—One of the foremost French airmen, Rene Vidart, is retiring from aviation disappointed. That there is no longer either money or glory in professional aviation is the conclusion arrived at by Vidart after four years of activity. To celebrate his retirement Vidart looped the loop fifteen consecutive times.

Thomas Coveney, custodian of the Roxbury Courthouse, is dead at his home, No. 27 Edson street, Dorchester, following a brief illness, in his forty-ninth year.

DELOREY AND MANTIR WILL WRITE WALSH

James Mantir and Peter Delorey, who have served three years of their sentence for the murder of Annie Mullins of North Cambridge, will this week write to Governor Walsh protesting their innocence and appealing for a pardon.

District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex County, as exclusively told in the Sunday AMERICAN, believes the two boys are innocent and will support their pardon plea. Likewise it is expected former District Attorney Higgins will oppose the pardon, since he conducted the case against them.

John A. Moroney is Mantir's attorney, and Frank McDermott of North Cambridge will act for Delorey. They will urge an early hearing of the pardon petition.

District Attorney Corcoran has made a thorough investigation of the case, and he discredits the statement of an aunt of young Delorey, which first connected the boys with the case. Likewise he discredits Delorey's confession, and believes he was tricked into it and that it is on its face untrue.

Truly Warner Opens a Store in Boston.

In view of the statement made in one of the Boston papers on Friday last that the straw hat styles shown at Harvard locked novelty and were practically the same styles as last year, the news that Truly Warner, the live metropolitan "Hatter to Mr. Gooddresser," will open his Boston store Thursday, the 14th, ought to be good news to the fellow who is looking for that unusual kind of a straw hat.

Lack of novelty and Truly Warner do not go together, and the novel variety and attractiveness of his offerings this season have already created a sensation in New York and Philadelphia.

His reputation in all principal cities of the United States precedes him here in Boston.

MORE TREMORS CAUSE OF NEW FEAR IN SICILY

ROME, May 11.—With the deathroll in the recent earthquake in Sicily now estimated at from 150 to 250, further shocks were felt today on the slopes of Mount Etna, causing intense alarm.

These tremors were particularly severe at Randazzo, a prosperous village upon the mountain side. The people fled from their homes, carrying their portable household effects with them.

Clouds of smoke and vapor are still issuing from the crater of the volcano, giving rise to fears that an eruption may follow. Deep rumbling noises like distant thunder can be heard in the middle of the smoking mountain, and the scientists who are on the ground are advising the people to remain out of the danger zone.

Burial of bodies of victims of the earthquake began today, many of them being unidentified. This was particularly true in cases where whole families were wiped out.

FEAR WATER FAMINE.

Temporary field hospitals have been set up for the care of the wounded of whom about 600 have been gathered in.

The relief workers face a grave situation in a water famine. Water mains were broken by the force of the earthquake and wells and springs were polluted by the debris which fell into them.

Soldiers, Red Cross nurses and volunteers are co-operating in the relief work. They are clearing away the debris as rapidly as possible in the search for more bodies, while food and clothing and tents are being distributed among the 10,000 homeless.

Throughout the night the work went on by torchlight except upon the coast where searchlights from ships were turned inland.

At Linera and other villages in the province of Catania, where the greatest force was felt, nothing remains but the heaps of ruins. The force of the tremors was greater than the shocks which destroyed Messina in 1908. Survivors say that they were thrown to the ground and tossed about as though in a rocking boat.

FIGHT DISEASE.

General Moccagatta, who is in command of the troops in the quake zone, telegraphed to the government today saying that strict precautions had been taken to prevent disease.

Army surgeons co-operating with the Red Cross have adopted rigid sanitary measures.

Funds are pouring in for the relief of the homeless. King Emmanuel heads the list with a personal donation of $20,000. The government has appropriated $10,000. About $1,000 has come from the Italian colony in New York.

Swift Says Curley Solved Unemployed Problem with a Joke

"Mayor Curley has treated the unemployment problem with levity and solved it with a joke. He seems to think that offering me a job mixing mortar had settled the whole question of poverty and starvation from want of work in this city," said Morrison I. Swift at the Humanist Forum.

"Mayor Curley believes in vicarious feeding of the starving. Offer the representative of a thousand famished men, women and fell the thousand to go away empty and hungry, and to regard themselves as provided for, because one of them is fed. This is the essence of the Mayor's political economy and wit."

Scottish Games Set for August First

The sixty-first annual Scotch picnic will be held at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, Saturday, August 1. A sanction has been granted by the N. E. A. A. U. for an open handicap set of games. In connection with the athletic meet an intercity relay race will be held, and Walter Scott of New York, who has donated several trophies for the athletic events at the Scotch picnics, has offered a trophy valued at $250 for this intercity race, the same to be competed for during period of three years before being finally possessed by any club.

Before Miss Jane Fairfield, daughter of Mrs. James C. Barr of Boston and Beverly Farms, returns from Europe to prepare for her coming wedding to Landon Humphreys of New York, she will attempt to swim the English Channel.

This information was contained in a letter received by one of her friends in Boston today. Miss Fairfield is one of the best swimmers in Boston's younger social set. She has beaten several of Miss Eleonora Sears's records on the North Shore, and has long cherished the hope of swimming the channel.

Miss Fairfield is in Paris at present recovering from an attack of the measles. She was sent to Paris to complete her education. Although but eighteen years old she has recently taken a prize for one of her portraits of Napoleon.

The young woman leaves Paris in a few weeks and will go to England, where she is expected to be presented at court.

FIVE ORPHANS FIND HOMES IN MALDEN PARISH

Today marked the dawn of a new life to five little orphans in the parish of the Sacred Heart Church in Malden. The children, three boys and two girls, have found new "mamas" and "papas."

They were formerly inmates of the Home for Destitute Catholic Children and were adopted by parishioners of the Sacred Heart Church. Joy has found its way into their hearts, for their one ambition—to have a father and mother like other children—has been realized.

The new "mamas" and "papas" are as happy as the children and the union is the result of the annual custom of the home, sending orphans to the various churches in the hope they will be adopted.

Seven of the orphans were sent to the Church of the Sacred Heart, and of these seven five were adopted. The other two girls are expected to be placed in homes before the end of the week. They were heartbroken when nobody appeared to adopt them, but their tears were soon banished by the hope that somebody, who wanted a little girl, was late for church and would call after them today or tomorrow or the next day.

The five more fortunate children are a bright set of youngsters and today found great delight in exploring the wonders of their new homes and getting acquainted with their "parents." All of the children are immensely pleased with their prospects and by word and action have announced their intentions of proving themselves worthy of the confidence placed in them and aim to grow up into model men and women.

East Boston Girl of 18 Is Suing for $20,000 Heart Balm

Colomba Della Iacono, eighteen, of East Boston has filed suit for $20,000 for alleged breach of promise against Antonio Cefalo, forty-six, of No. 39 Brooks street, Roslindale, a Federal contractor. Her father, Stanislao Della Iacono of No. 136 London street, brings the action. Friends of the girl say Cefalo was to deposit $10,000 in her name, but later took out a marriage license to wed another.

HERRESHOFF $2,500 JEWEL IS MISSING

NEW YORK, May 11.—A mystery surrounding the disappearance of a $2,500 diamond ring and necklace belonging to Mrs. J. R. F. Herreshoff, a relative of the yacht builder, from the Ritz-Carlton Hotel has engaged the attention of the police and private detectives.

According to the story of one of the detectives, the jewels disappeared a week ago yesterday. They were loaned by Mrs. Herreshoff to Mrs. Andrew B. Anthony of Bristol, R. I., a relative of United States Senator Le Baron B. Colt, who wore them at a dinner Sunday evening.

Mrs. Anthony was then a guest of Mrs. R. L. Beekman at the Ritz and was unable to get her own jewels because they were locked in a safe in the Beekman apartment. Mrs. Herreshoff left early, asking Mrs. Anthony to leave the gems with the hotel clerk to be called for.

Mrs. Dickenson, who is the wife of Reginald Vanderbilt's butler, said she had left them with the clerk. The clerk denies this.

Mrs. La Follette and Mrs. Evans Climb a 12,000-Foot Peak

Having succeeded in climbing Mt. Irazu, a 12,000-foot volcano in Costa Rica, Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans of No. 12 Otis place, Boston, and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the United States Senator from Wisconsin, arrived on the steamship Sixaola after a trip to Central America and the Canal Zone.

Both claim the climb was worth the effort, as Mount Irazu is said to be the only point from which the Atlantic and Pacific oceans can be seen at the same time.

DIVIDED SKIRT MUCH IN FAVOR AT LONGCHAMPS

PARIS, May 11.—Notwithstanding all the opprobrium that has been their lot, divided skirts are winning the increasing favor of smart women. They were the dominating fashion note at the Longchamps races.

Josephine Browne, the American actress, who since her secret marriage in London is a Duchess of Portugal, was the most daring exponent of this style. Her attire, in fact, startled even the sophisticated crowd at Longchamps, accustomed as it is to freaks of all kinds.

She wore a perfect feminine adaptation of the classical Apache costume—wide brown corduroy trousers, a short sack coat of the same material, a red silk muffler above a manly shirt.

The finishing touch of this most unusual get up was given by a cigarette stuck rakishly in the corner of her mouth and a tortoise shell rimmed monocle worn on the right eye, apparently a concession to her new British nationality.

A leopard skin in the rough was thrown over her back and tied in front by the tail and one leg. While promenading with her husband across the paddock she was the centre of all attention and kept the photographers busy.

Once more priceless lace is being worn freely. In many cases whole overskirts are made of old Chantilly worth a small fortune falling in graceful folds to the ankles over a foundation of satin gray, in most cases, or of other equally unobtrusive colors.

This appearance of lace together with such accessories as deep embroidery of real gold and other magnificent trimming leaves no doubt that the fashion this Autumn and Summer will be very expensive and the details will figure largely in the budget of the fashionable woman.

Mine Men Deny Concession by Rockefeller

NEW YORK, May 9.—Local leaders of the American Federation of Labor have received from Secretary-Treasurer Green of the United Mine Workers' Union a statement contradicting John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, recent public statement on the issues of the Colorado mine strike.

Rockefeller said his concern, the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, had conceded its employes an eight-hour day, semi-monthly pay, check weighmen, regulation of company stores and increased wages before the strike was inaugurated.

"Had these points been conceded at any time stated by Rockefeller," says Green, "the strike would never have been inaugurated.

"Nor is it true, as Rockefeller says, that the question of contention is the unionizing of the mines."

Green declares the sole issue is whether Rockefeller or his representatives will meet a committee of miners, who desire to discuss their grievances.

Picketing at the Standard Oil offices was continued. Upton Sinclair did not leave for Colorado, as he had intended. The illness of his wife kept him in the city.

60 Fight Claim of Phipps' Sons to Cape Cod Estate

More than sixty heirs of persons who have owned the property in the past century are opposing the efforts of John S. Phipps, Howard Phipps and Henry C. Phipps, sons of the late Henry Phipps, the Pittsburgh steel magnate, to get the Land Court an estate valued at $85,000, purchased by their father at Yarmouth on Cape Cod, fifteen years ago.

The land was once held by Charles B. Corey, who built golf links there. Henry Phipps, coming to play over the course, purchased the estate.

Are You Constipated?

Rheumasalts Insures Quick and Safe Relief.

The safest, most pleasant and quickest way to relieve constipation and all its misery and illthat go with it, is to dissolve a little Rheumasalts in water and drink it while it is effervescing.

Rheumasalts is scientifically blended and chemically pure carbonated lithia drink that cleans out the stomach and intestines, eliminates toxins and poisons and leaves the intestinal canal clean and sweet.

If you are bothered with constipation, headaches, sallow skin, coated tongue, bad breath, indigestion, biliousness, neuralgia or rheumatism, then you need Rheumasalts. Fine for both adults and infants.

It is a uric acid solvent as well as a saline laxative. Instead of "dosing" yourself with drug-forming, heart depressing "laxative" pills and tablets, take Rheumasalts. It is delicious to the taste and acts quickly without griping. Rheumasalts is as salts is as pure as the natural laxative salts from the Mineral Springs.

The next time you need a laxative ask your druggist for a 25c, or the $1.00 bottle of Rheumasalts. If he hasn't the genuine Rheumasalts don't take "something just as good." Send 25c, 50c or $1.00 to the Rheumasalts Company, Dept. 154, Minneapolis, Minn., for a bottle which we will send you by return mail.

First Race to Pick Defender on July 7

The feature of the annual cruise of the Eastern Yacht Club along the southeastern New England coast next Summer will be the annual regatta off New port on July 7, when the Puritan cup will be awarded, and the three cup defence yachts, Defiance, Resolute and Vanitie, will have their first meeting in a race that will count towards selection, according to plans made public today.

The Puritan cup is a perpetual trophy held by the club and raced for by yachts of all classes over twenty-five feet waterline. It was the prize for sloops in the Goelet cup race off Newport in 1885, and was the first trophy won by the Boston cup defender Puritan, which later in the year defeated the British challenger Genesta in the America's cup races. Models of the cup are given to the winners.

LOS ANGELES OWNERSHIP OF LIGHT PLANT EXAMPLE TO U. S., SAYS W. R. HEARST

Action of its Citizens Marks Important Step in the General Advance of Municipal Ownership, and Will Be Followed by Older Cities, He Adds

William Randolph Hearst has sent the following telegram to Max F. Ihmsen, publisher of the Los Angeles, Cal., Examiner:

New York, May 9, 1914.

M. F. IHMSEN,
Examiner, Los Angeles, Cal.

The action of the citizens of Los Angeles in carrying by more than a two-thirds' vote the proposition to own and operate their own light and power plants in Los Angeles is another important step in the general advance of municipal ownership, and another evidence of the intelligent, progressive spirit of the people of the West.

This action of Los Angeles, following so closely upon the acquisition and successful operation of a municipal street railway in San Francisco, will have a far-reaching effect upon the cause of municipal ownership everywhere.

Such demonstrations of the practicability of municipal ownership are needed in order to convince the older and more conservative sections of the country of the business as well as political advantage of the public ownership and public operation of public utilities.

Los Angeles, therefore, in taking this forward step, is not only benefiting herself and her own people, but is, as she has so often done before, setting an example for the rest of the country to learn from and to follow.

New York, and some of the other old and more conservative cities in the country, are already beginning to be afflicted with a certain hardening of the political arteries, a certain stiffening of the social and economic joints, a certain dimming of the sight and dulling of the perception, which indicate the approach of age. These communities are not able to see as clearly or to move as quickly as young and vigorous and enthusiastic communities like Los Angeles and San Francisco.

These older communities are unwilling to take up a new idea, or experiment with a new proposition, lest they should make a mistake. They fail to realize that the greatest of all mistakes in the activity of modern life is a failure to advance, a failure to keep up with the march of modern events.

The progress of the world must be made by young individuals and by young communities. The idea that it is the old who teach the young is a mistake. It is the young who teach the old, as far as the old can be taught. It is the young who set new standards, the young who are not restricted by old and outgrown conventions.

Los Angeles has done its duty to itself and its citizens, and it has conferred a benefit indirectly upon the people of this country as a whole. It has taken its place in the lead of modern progress, and as it demonstrates the success of modern progressive ideas, other cities will follow its inspiring example.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

PEOPLE TRIUMPH OVER MONEY IN LIGHT FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 11.—It begins to be clear to all that in voting for municipal ownership of its light and power plants, carrying the issue by a great majority, as it did on Friday, Los Angeles has set the pace for American cities.

Los Angeles already had built an aqueduct at a cost of $26,000,000 to provide adequate water supply for a future city with a population of a million or more. It was asked to vote for an additional bond issue of $6,500,000 so that the water power of that aqueduct may be developed in the form of electricity to furnish that future city with electric light and electric power.

The vote for the bond issue was 56,199, and against, 23,179. To carry the bonds needed a two-thirds vote. A vote of 46,359 would have been enough to offset the 23,179 negative votes. So, figuring this way, there were 9,000 affirmative votes to spare.

PEOPLE HAVE TRIUMPHED.

Three light and power companies are in business in the city. They declined to deal with the city on any basis which would at some time in the future give to the city possession of their property. It was then decided to try to raise money by another bond issue sufficient to provide city power plants and a distributing system, if it should be necessary to build the latter also.

The companies were against the bond issue. They brought to bear in the fight the great money power. Public utilities of all kinds, scenting danger, lined up with them. And over all the people have triumphed.

The advocates of municipal ownership unhesitatingly give great praise to William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers, particularly the Los Angeles Examiner.

In the campaign two of Mr. Hearst's arguments that seemed particularly to fit the situation were everywhere quoted. One, taken from his speech in Clermont Rink, Brooklyn, October 26, 1905, follows:

"There is no plan of confiscation in our municipal ownership platform, but we are not only openly opposed to public confiscation of private property, but to private confiscation of public property."

The other was from Mr. Hearst's speech in Cosmopolitan Hall, New York, October 21, 1905. It read:

MR. HEARST'S VIEWS.

"A plain program of public ownership is simply the application of the same business principles to public property as are applied to private property.

"The rights of property are sacred. We all admit that and we assert that the rights of the people as a whole to their property are just as important as the right of the individuals to his property."

Another great aid in the fight was the record already made by Los Angeles in the operation of municipally-owned water works. The city has owned its water works eleven years. On the authority of William Mulholland, builder of the great new aqueduct, municipal ownership of this water plant has brought the city, in the eleven years, profits of $8,246,571.18.

This has been accomplished, too, with a liberal reduction in rates. The minimum rate to consumers was lowered from $1.50 to seventy-five cents; the rate to small consumers from twenty cents to seven cents per hundred cubic feet and to large consumers from fifteen cents to seven cents per hundred cubic feet.

If present rates are charged, the gross profit to the city will be $2,100,000 annually and the net profit $1,700,000 annually.

Ensign's Bride to Return to School

After a honeymoon of three days, Ensign J. Leslie King will tomorrow return to the battleship Rhode Island, at the Charlestown Navy Yard. He and his old schoolmate, Helen Fernald of Newburyport, were married there Saturday night.

The wedding date had been originally set for June, but orders came for the Rhode Island to sail for Mexico not later than May 20, and the young people determined to set ahead the wedding date so they might be married before he left.

Mrs. King is a Boston University senior, and has been at Mount Holyoke for a year. She has a place on the Commencement and Class Day programs. She will return tomorrow to finish her work at Boston University.

Six Months for Allston Break

Oscar Hudson, nineteen, and Andrew Jackson, eighteen, of Indianapolis, were sentenced to six months each in the House of Correction in the Brighton court today on the charge of attempting to enter the store of Joseph Nadel of No. 95 Everett street, Allston, last night.

EMBALM BODY OF NORDICA FOR SHIPMENT HOME

BATAVIA, Java, May 11.—The body of Mme. Lillian Nordica, the singer, who died last night of pneumonia after four months' illness, was embalmed today and will be shipped to New York at once for burial. Mme. Nordica had booked passage to Naples shortly before she died.

The death of Lillian Nordica is no more deeply mourned anywhere in the world today than in Boston, where she started on the career that placed her among the world's great song birds, nor when in New England, where she was born.

Lillian Norton was born in Farmington, Me., May 12, 1859. Both her father's and mother's families were celebrated for their voices. The daughter's proved exceptional, and she came to Boston at fifteen to study at the New England Conservatory of Music under John O'Neil. It is said she was aided by Eben Jordan.

In the later seventies she sang in Grace Church, South Boston, and in Dr. Putnam's church, Roxbury, in 1876. She made her first appearances in concert work that year at a Papine recital in Rumstead Hall. Christmas eve of that year she sang the solo soprano of "The Messiah" at a Handel and Haydn concert.

She was three times married, her last husband being George W. Young, a Jersey City banker.

Mme. Nordica had been ill since the steamer Tasman, on which she was a passenger, went ashore in Brouwer Bay in the Gulf of Papua, December 28, last.

Henry Morgan Now Fully Recovered

Henry Morgan, fifteen, son of J. Pierpont Morgan, has fully recovered from the illness he suffered at the Groton School. Dr. E. G. Kilburn of Groton, Dr. Henry Jackson and Dr. Hugh Williams of Boston were called when it was feared he had appendicitis.

Jacob A. Riis Taken Ill on Way to Barre

COLDBROOK SPRINGS, May 11.—Jacob A. Riis, on his way from a sanatarium at Battle Creek, Mich., to his Summer home at Barre, collapsed while riding in an automobile with his wife and a nurse. He is resting comfortably today.

Open Convention of K. of C. Tomorrow

The annual convention of the State Knights of Columbus will open tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Hotel Somerset. Delegates from the 140 councils will attend.

Rev. James McCarthy, State chaplain, will deliver the opening prayer.

Funeral of C. M. Hamilton.

The funeral of Clayton M. Hamilton, aged sixty-five, was held today in Harmony Hall, No. 724 Washington street. Rev. N. P. Smith of the Spiritualist Phenomenon Church of Boston officiated. Mr. Hamilton for twenty-five years was in business in the Old Fellows building, corner of Washington and Kneeland streets.

15 Loop the Loops
Hen Lays Horn
New Twinkle Dance

JOSEPH GUBEROWSKI OF BAYONNE, N. J., has brought suit against his wife, naming his brother, Felix, as corespondent. The brothers married sisters.

ANGERED BECAUSE SEVERAL attorneys declined to defend W. C. Branch, a poor man charged with malicious shooting and wounding, the court of Lexington, Ky., appointed the bar of twenty lawyers to defend Branch.

A LEGHORN HEN OF NEWTON, N. J., laid an egg shaped like a horn of plenty. Farmers here believe it a sign of good times.

DECLARING THAT THERE IS NO longer money or glory for aviators, Rene Vidart, the French airman, celebrated his retirement from the flying business by looping the loop fifteen consecutive times.

ALL CHURCH SERVICES AT Clyde Bank, Scotland, were suspended one hour, when the huge Cunarder Aquitania sailed for Liverpool. One hundred thousand towns folks witnessed the departure.

"WALKING WHISKEY DISPENsary" is a new charge in Atlantic City on the police blotter. Henry Albert, his pockets filled with half-pint flasks of gin and whiskey, was arrested while supplying thirsty ones in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania Railroad station.

A NEW DANCE, THE "TWINKLE," devoid of hugs, shrugs and shuffles, will be demonstrated by its inventor, Thomas McDougall, secretary of the American Association of Masters of Dancing, at the annual convention of that organization in Cleveland, O., June 8 to 28.

James W. Tobey Is Dead at Age of 84

James W. Tobey, for fifty years a resident of Roxbury and a prominent builder, died today at his home, No. 126 Blue Hill avenue, of heart disease. Mr. Tobey celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday last week. For many years he was engaged in building in the Back Bay. He is survived by a son and a daughter.

THOUSANDS OF TRUE PATRIOTS FLY THE FLAG

Thousands of AMERICAN readers today stand pledged to keep the Stars and Stripes flying through the present trouble with Mexico.

In this way a sincere form of effective patriotism is shown.

Show your colors. Let your neighbors and every passerby see that you stand for respect for the flag.

More letters received by the AMERICAN in support of the plan to keep the flag flying follow:

GLADYS WILCOX, No. 242 Cambridge street, Allston: "I am a little girl eleven years old. My brother belongs to the coast artillery and my mother's uncle fought in the Civil War. We think a lot of the American flag and hang it out every holiday. Please ask all the people of Allston to do the same."

WILFRED W. and ARTHUR L. HENDERSON, No. 269½ Tremont street: "We are two soldiers, and we have always respected our country, have raised Old Glory to show our true love for the flag and the country it stands for. Allow no one to insult our flag."

FRANK CROWLEY, No. 49 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown: "I am a sailor on board the U. S. S. Rhode Island. I am glad to see the people of Boston show some patriotism to our 'Grand Old Flag.' I have a flag flying from my window at home in memory of the rest of the boys who went down to fight in Mexico. God bless them and bring them home safe and sound."

MARION BARRY, No. 44 Woodland street, Forest Hills: "Our flag was raised two weeks ago and shall fly until the Mexican danger is over. My grandfather and two cousins fought in the Civil War on the U. S. S. Kearsarge. We are proud of our family record."

IDA MAY FOSTER, No. 314 Main street, Everett: "I think it a grand thing to hang out the Stars and Stripes. God bless our flag always. I am the granddaughter of a Civil War veteran who died in Libby Prison from starvation, and I am also the daughter of a Spanish War veteran."

PAUL R. JOHNSTON, No. 44 Newton street, Brighton: "We raised our flag and have the honor to be the first on our street to do so. Our flag will flont until every Mexican salutes the flag his nation has insulted."

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

HARRIETTE DRAPER, CLEVER PAINTER, TO WED

SMART SET BUSY WITH PLANS FOR SPENDING ITS SUMMER HOLIDAY

Among the weddings of the near future will be that of Miss Harriette E. Draper, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Draper of Winchester and Boston, and Charles J. Gale, Harvard '10.

Miss Draper, who is a charming and talented girl, is a well known miniature painter and is a member of the Art League of New York. Mr. Gale is a member of the Fraternity Harvard Club of Boston, Colonial and Cavalry Clubs.

* * *

Among Bostonians just arrived at White Sulphur Springs are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Gannett, the latter a daughter of the late Governor Eben S. Draper.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Robinson of Boston have joined friends at the New Greenbrier at the Hot Springs and are taking the "kur." The Nelson Curtises of Boston are also recent arrivals at the Springs.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman of New York have arrived at their North Shore estate at Ipswich for the Summer. They will shortly be joined there by their son, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., who makes his home in Boston, where his business interests are centred.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner M. Lane will spend the Summer in Europe and will be accompanied by their attractive little daughter, Katherine.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weld and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loomis are among those younger married people who are already settled in their country places at Tuxedo for the Summer.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson S. Bartlett, Jr. (Christine Hunnewell) are among the earliest of the arrivals at the North Shore. They are occupying the Little cottage at Beverly Farms.

* * *

Miss Harriet Dexter, with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Dexter, have arrived at "Oberland," their country estate at Beverly Cove. Miss Dexter is among the most interesting girls of her set and is a leader among the younger girls of the North Shore.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Bolles of Commonwealth avenue and their family will go to their Summer place at Cohasset the coming week. They had planned to spend the Summer abroad, but on account of illness Mrs. Bolles has been compelled to remain at home.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Remick will go to their cottage at Swampscott to-morrow. The James T. Wetheralds of Marlboro street have opened their cottage at Phillips Beach. They were down there earlier in the Spring and then went to Atlantic City for a short visit and have just returned.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barnard, who recently returned from an extended tour abroad, are now at their country place at Ipswich.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Forbes, who figured so prominently in affairs during the Winter and who made their home on Clarendon street, have gone to their estate in Westwood. Mrs. Forbes has become decidedly popular in Boston and one of her charming sister-in-law, Miss Dorothy Forbes, are the best of chums.

* * *

The annual Chestnut Hill Horse Show will this year, as usual, prove a strong drawing card for the sport-loving element of the fashionables. The show will be held on May 30 and entries will close May 20. The committee for the show includes Andrew Aidie, William L. Allen, Henry W. Bliss, Chester A. Howe, Herbert Jacques, Francis W. Lee, Montgomery Rollins, Rulchard M. Saltonstall, Edwin S. Webster, A. Winsor Weld and George R. Wood.

* * *

The Chester W. Hinmes of Marlboro street are planning to leave town the middle of the month for their Summer home at New London. Upon their return in the Fall they will occupy the house at No. 490 Commonwealth avenue.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Bennett of Commonwealth avenue and their attractive daughters, Elizabeth, Margaret and Helen, are to pass July and August at York Harbor, Me.

WOMEN IN WAR TODAY OVER BILL TO LICENSE CATS

Action on the bill for the licensing of cats in Massachusetts is due in the House today. The bill, as it now stands, also provides for a 50-cent reward for the killing of any unlicensed cat.

Bird lovers are prepared to fight for the bill, together with many lovers of cats, who say it will do away with neglected felines.

Opposition has also been active. Tomorrow the Boston Cat Club meets in Brookline to take measures to oppose the bill in case it goes to the Senate.

Miss May A. Plummer of No. 377 Lexington avenue, Lexington, a member of the club, said today: "I am opposed to the bill. Just think of the cruelty it is going to perpetrate. Hundreds of people will turn their cats loose rather than pay a license fee for them, and that is going to flood the State with stray cats, greatly increasing the wanderers rather than decreasing them.

"Think of the youngsters that would take a shot at every cat they saw in an alleyway, trying to stone them to death in the hope of getting the 50-cent fee."

Mrs. George B. Brayton of Brighton, president of the Cat Club; Mrs. Daniel Merriman of No. 73 Bay State road, Mrs. Herbert Beech of No. 185 Commonwealth avenue, vice-president of the Animal Rescue League, and other prominent women oppose the bill.

Favoring it are John T. Morse, Jr., of No. 16 Fairfield street; Winthrop Packard, secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Audubon Society; Frank M. Chapman, editor of Bird Lore, and others.

Resume Probe of Wakefield Strike

MISS JOAN SAWYER, who is in Boston to illustrate the "Aeroplane Waltz" and a new tango.

JOAN SAWYER TO SHOW NEW TANGO HERE

Several new dances, particularly the "Aeroplane waltz," the "Three-in-one" and a new variety of the tango, are to be danced for the benefit of Bostonians by Miss Joan Sawyer, who comes to the Shubert Theatre on Monday evening, May 25.

Miss Sawyer, who comes direct from six months at her own Persian Garden at Broadway and Fiftieth street, New York, will appear at the head of her own dancing carnival company.

She will give her own interpretation of the modern dance. She not only does the common tango, maxixe, hesitation and one-step, but also has the new dances mentioned above.

Assisting the talented exponent of modern dancing will be a special corps of dancers of many kinds and from many countries. There will be a dozen or more dancing couples and a supporting dancing chorus.

The Boston engagement is the beginning of a transcontinental dancing tour, following a year and one-half of continuous dancing in New York for Miss Sawyer in her Persian Garden or in private houses.

There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees in the one-week engagement here.

Boston Opera Troupe Scores Hit in Paris

PARIS, May 11.—The Boston Opera Company's second performance of "Othello" was a triumph. The audience filled every seat in the theatre and many persons were turned away. The scenes of enthusiasm have been seldom equalled here. Who Reads the Boston American?

A question that finds answer in the names listed below. For by the calibre of a newspaper's contributors may be measured the character of its circulation

WHO do you suppose are attracted by the articles of such world famous writers on business and finance as B. C. Forbes, Joseph F. Pritchard, Edwin Low Ranlett and W. C. Lawson?

Who but big business men—Bankers, Brokers, Merchants—Successful men in every line of commercial endeavor? And WHY?

Simply because through no other channel can they secure such authentic information, such accurate summaries of the various day-to-day situations, such true reflections of conditions as they are.

Large, therefore, is the percentage of Boston's successful business men who daily consult the Boston American's columns.

But such character of audience is not confined to the American's Business and Financial columns. It extends to every department which goes to make up this great newspaper—daily and Sunday.

And the attractions of these other departments are the attractions of their contributors; the most talented modern-day writers of fact and fiction, poetry and prose—the ablest authorities of the hour on every vital subject—the cleverest of today's artists and illustrators. No magazine has more merit than each issue of the Sunday American.

Followers of Art, Music, Literature and the Drama find the greatest exponents of these numbered among the American's contributors.

People to whom foreign news is interesting read the American for the complete and authoritative information contained in its foreign and cable pages.

Those who would keep abreast with the world's progress the day-by-day advancement from the brilliant writings which constantly characterize the American's columns.

So on throughout the various features of the newspaper—all reflect effort of the highest order possible of procurement—effort which, in each instance, has won the greatest measure of success. And just as like attracts like, so the American's contents attract people who are progressive and prosperous, and therefore responsive to the appeal of Boston American advertising.

Alert-minded, full-pulsed successful men and women form the logical audience for these quality contributors

Editorial and Special Contributors

C. O'CONNELL GALVIN

An authority on Irish and Parliamentary affairs, a leader in the Home Rule movement.

ELIAS M'QUAID

State House Representative and widely known political writer. A man with a fine vein of dry humor and a fund of good nature which lends to his writing a rare sort of attractiveness.

ELBERT HUBBARD

Author, Lecturer and Philosopher. Noted as one of the most facile and forceful writers of the day. As editor of the Philistine and The Fra, his pungent comments on men and events are widely read. His "Message to Garcia" holds a high place in American literature, and has been translated into fourteen languages and reprinted about forty million times.

REV. DR. CHARLES F. AKED

Eminent Divine and Author. Dr. Aked is one of the broadest-minded men in the American pulpit. He covers a wide range of timely subjects for the American—not from the viewpoint of the minister, but from that of the man—the close observer and analyst. Dr. Aked first gained prominence as Mr. John D. Rockefeller's pastor.

BISHOP SAMUEL FALLOWS

Noted Chicago Divine. Authority on economic questions, and a writer who invests his subject with a rare element of interest, always.

LUCILLE DUFF GORDON

VIRGINIA T. VAN DE WATER

Essayist and Writer of Short Stories. Educated by private tutors in America, Rome, Italy and Geneva, Switzerland, she has a style of marked distinctiveness. Her stories hold particular appeal to women and give her a unique place among writers of this class of literature.

REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

Notable for his success in the field of journalism. In his articles he discusses briefly, and in a most interesting manner, social, economic, biographical and historical topics in an intimate way. He was the first to treat great events of the past and important questions and individuals in this manner.

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Novelist. Perhaps the most popular fiction writer of the hour, Mr. Chambers is in the unique position of having his stories contracted for many months before they are even conceived in his mind. The American Sunday Monthly Magazine has just enrolled him as a regular contributor.

ARTHUR BRISBANE

Editor. Perhaps the most widely known newspaper writer in the United States—a man whose messages are read daily by many millions. A regular contributor to the Sunday American.

WINIFRED BLACK

(Mrs. Charles A. Bonfils.) Investigator, Social Worker and Journalist. A widely popular woman, whose forceful handling of moral subjects and the interesting manner in which she discusses topics of particular interest to women have placed her among the best-known women journalists.

GARRETT P. SERVISS

Scientist. A man of rare attainments, who treats the latest developments of science in an interestingly comprehensive manner and makes them easily understandable to the lay mind.

WILLIS J. ABBOT

A keen observer, whose articles on subjects of national interest are accounted among the ablest in their line.

LILIAN BELL

Noted author of numerous popular novels and a regular contributor to the columns of the American.

PAUL ARMSTRONG

Playwright, whose "Alias Jimmy Valentine" made him famous from Atlantic to Pacific.

CLARA MORRIS

Actress. For years the greatest emotional actress on the American stage, and one of the most beloved of American women.

CHARLES FERGUSON

Editorial Writer. Specialist on socialistic problems. A man whose every word reflects the light of wisdom along ways often dark and obscure.

ADA PATTERSON

Journalist. Her writings are remarkable for their depth of human interest and greatness of understanding.

RUDOLPH BLOCK

Author. Well known under the pen name of Bruno Lessing, whose short stories of Ghetto life are deservedly famous.

LEONARD MERRICK

Author. One of the strongest writers of short stories in the English-speaking world today.

JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A Humorist with rare talent for putting into laugh provoking verse various episodes of the hour.

WEX JONES

A Favorite Funny Man. His rhyme is irresistibly clever and can ever be counted on to chase the moment's cares.

PROF. EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Scientist. A man of vast attainments, whose writings for the American are as interesting as they are educational.

MARY AUSTIN

Novelist. Miss Austin writes on timely subjects without the slightest sacrifice of her usual charm of narrative.

Famous Contributors Abroad

HALL CAINE

World famous English novelist and dramatist, and a particular favorite of the American people.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO

Italy's foremost novelist, and a writer whose individuality has been felt around the world.

MAXIME GORKY

Great Russian novelist.

MAXIMILIAN HARDEN

Brilliant Berlin Editor of "Die Zukunft."

GUGLIELMO FERRERO

Famous historian, and author of "The Greatness and Decline of Rome."

W. ORTON TEWSON

Authority on British and Colonial affairs, and London Correspondent for the American.

CAMILLO CIANFARRO

Rome Correspondent for the American, and perhaps as well versed in Italian affairs as any man in that country.

CHARLES F. BERTELLI

Paris Correspondent for the American, and one of the most versatile and widely acquainted men of affairs in Europe.

A. C. WILKIE

Berlin Correspondent for the American, and student of German conditions.

VEHAN CARDASHIAN

Constantinople Correspondent for the American, and the man who obtained for this paper the only interview ever secured from the Sultan of the Mohammedan Church.

MAX SIMON NORDAU

Author, Scientist, Physician, President of the Congress of Scientists and officer of Academie France. An authority on scientific, ethical and sociological subjects.

RAOUL AMUNDSEN

Explorer. Discoverer of the South Pole. A man whose achievement is unique also from the fact that it has never been disputed.

Art, Drama, Music and Literature

NICHOLAS YOUNG

Dramatic Critic. As a reviewer of today's drama, and a writer of stage gossip and humor, Mr. Young uncovers to few men in his field. His wide acquaintanceship with things and people theatrical, coupled with a keen critical sense, makes his contributions to the American a source of enjoyment to many thousands of readers.

FREDERICK JOHNS

Music Critic. In Boston's musical circles, Mr. Johns' comment on his chosen theme is held in high regard. For many years a close student of music and the musical world, he writes in the light of one who understands—which, regrettably, is not always the case where such critics are concerned.

ALAN DALE

Dramatic Critic and Author. A product of Oxford University. His brilliant criticisms of plays and their production are written in a style that attracts nation-wide interest and attention. He is author of "Familiar Chats with Queens of the Stage."

EDWIN MARKHAM

Poet, Philosopher, Lecturer. A blacksmith, farmer and cattle herder in his youth, and later school teacher in San Francisco. While there he wrote "The Man with the Hoe," which has won for him world-wide fame. His contributions to the American embrace a wide range of topics, and his book reviews are noted for their fairness and interest.

ANGELA MORGAN

Talented Writer and Poet. Her articles and poems find nation-wide publication, and are sought by magazine editors on every side.

Business and Finance

WILLIAM H. ROSS

Daily Local Financial Page Editor. A keen analyst of financial conditions as they affect Boston, and a graphic reporter of the daily events of the financial world at large. Mr. Ross's broad knowledge and viewpoint commands for him the respect of Boston's biggest business men, and a wide following among them.

B. C. FORBES

Business and Financial Editor. Mr. Forbes's daily Fact and Comment column is read across the nation. He has gained the confidence of all sides because he is not afraid to tell the truth. And, although he has unsparingly prodded the New York Stock Exchange, he is the only financial writer to receive an official complimentary letter from that institution on the value of his writings.

JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD

Grain Expert. Mr. Pritchard's articles are famous for their accurate reflections of conditions wherever grain is grown. In a recent personal canvass of the Chicago Board of Trade—the centre of this country's grain market—it was learned that fully 95 per cent. of its members not only read the grain articles by Mr. Pritchard, but that they look upon them as the strongest of any written.

EDWARD LOW RANLETT

Cotton Expert. Associated with both the practical and theoretical side of the cotton market for about twenty-five years.

W. R. LAWSON

London Financial Expert. A member of the London Stock Exchange. It was an article of Mr. Lawson's which led to disclosures of British Cabinet Ministers buying Marconi shares, an episode which recently caused a tremendous furore in Europe. Mr. Lawson's cables to the American are eagerly read and discussed by bankers, brokerage and large business interests everywhere.

LOUIS AUBERT

Expert on French Finance. Mr. Aubert is one of the best known economists in France, as well as a close student of American financial institutions. When international political questions are boiling, his statements attract great attention because of his intimate relations with the French government. No other American newspaper receives cables of the weight and authenticity of Mr. Aubert's.

D. KEESING

Financial Expert in Holland. Mr. Keesing's correspondence is of particular interest because of the enormous amounts of low-priced American securities held in Holland. He is acknowledged to be the foremost financial writer in that country and has a thorough understanding of American affairs. To him is credit due for the real facts about the Standard Oil-Royal Dutch world-wide oil fight, which is still far from being settled.

BROADAN WALL

(Clement B. Asbury.) Stock Market Expert. Mr. Asbury has been active in the "Street" for more than a quarter of a century. His daily report of the stock market has an audience of greater size and influence than that of any other commentator in America. His deductions are rarely on the wrong side, while his searching comments frequently prove of priceless value to thousands.

Sports

A. H. C. MITCHELL

Author of baseball stories and expert on sporting subjects. His daily chat in the American has won him an enviable audience.

WALTER CAMP

JAMES S. MITCHELL

JAMES E. SULLIVAN

United States Commissioner to the Olympic Games. The world's recognized authority on athletics. Secretary and treasurer of the A. A. U.

CHARLES E. COURTNEY

CONSTANCE S. TITUS

Former World's Champion Sculler. An expert on regattas.

CHARLES F. BRICKLEY

One of the greatest football players of the age. Fullback on the Harvard team, and star kicker of the decade.

FRANCIS OUIMET

Open Golf Champion of the World. A man who bids fair to equal on the printed page his career feats on the links.

"RUBE" MARQUARD

Record-Holding Pitcher of the Giants. His rapid and phenomenal rise to the first rank has been one of the wonders of the baseball world.

L. R. MURDOCK

Sporting Editor of the American, will write baseball, football and other sport news and gossip.

JACK CONWAY

Will cover the boxers and boxing news of New England.

H. P. FARRINGTON

The well-known professional Boston golfer, will give the most complete account of golf news in this section published in any New England paper.

"CHICK" EVANS

Former Western champion and one of the great golf stars now "invading" Europe, will describe the games of the Americans abroad in his inimitable, breezy fashion.

HARRY C. THOMAS

The Boston American's yachting expert, will write daily stories covering the America's Cup preliminaries and all other yachting news of the New England coast.

TYRUS COBB

Greatest all-round ball player of this or any other time, and the leading batsman of the country.

GEORGE E. PHAIR

Sporting Paragrapher. Every man interested in the world of sports finds keen delight in the perusal of Mr. Phair's "Breakfast Food" column. His witty comments on sporting people and events seldom fail to score a bull's eye.

WILLIAM MULDOON

Wrestler. For many years champion wrestler of the world. Trained John L. Sullivan for his most famous battle. Now engaged in showing business and professional men how to live. At his country estate in Westchester County he has rescued many American notables from the ill effects of the so-called "strenuous life."

DAMON RUNYON

A Star Among Sporting Writers, and a brilliant all-round newspaper man. His best work, however, is in the baseball field, and his stories of the regular series and the world championships have given him easily first place in that particular line of work.

Artists and Cartoonists

T. E. POWERS

Cartoonist. The political cartoons of Mr. Powers are at once the apprehension and delight of politicians and a never-failing source of amusement to the lookers-on at the game. His pictures are frequently more potent than scores of paragraphs.

F. B. OPPER

Artist and Cartoonist. Principal cartoonist for Puck for eighteen years. Illustrator of books of Mark Twain, Bill Nye, Peter Finley Dunne (Mr. Dooley) and George V. Hobart (Dinkelspiel). Famous for his "Happy Hooligan," "Alphonse and Gaston," "John Bull" and "Maud, the Matchless."

WINSOR McCAY

Cartoonist. An artist of rare talent. Creator of "Tales of Jungle Imps," "Sammy Sneeze," "Hungry Henrietta," "Dreams of the Rarebit Fiend," "Dull Care," "Poor Jake," "Little Nemo in the Land of Wonderful Dreams," "Man from Montclair" and other social and political cartoons now being printed in the Sunday American.

GEORGE McMANUS

Comic Cartoonist. His "Bringing Up Father" sketches in the American are appreciated by the old as well as the young. He is the originator of "Jerry on the Job," "Home Dope" and the "Newly Weds" series, which are familiar to laugh-loving Americans from coast to coast.

BUD FISHER

Cartoonist. Mr. Fisher's "Mutt and Jeff" series has attained a fame and popularity such as few comics have known. A feature of the Sunday American's sporting pages which is watched with keen interest and enjoyment by countless thousands.

R. F. OUTCAULT

Creator of "Buster Brown," whose work has endeared him to children from one end of the country to the other. Mr. Outcault also has the distinction of having created a character in this quaint comic whose name has become a household word throughout the entire United States.

JAMES SWINNERTON

Cartoonist. Mr. Swinnerton's humorous portrayals of the small boy, as exemplified in his "Jimmy and the Baby" series, have gained him overwhelming popularity with the little folk everywhere, and with their fun-loving elders, as well.

H. B. EDDY

Artist. A man whose work is highly prized in art circles, and whose rare talent in handling color lends constant exemplification in the Sunday American. Mr. Eddy's ability to give life and action to his every subject compels the most casual observer's admiration.

GEORGE KERR

Artist. An international reputation is enjoyed by Mr. Kerr, whose paintings find reproduction in the Sunday American, and who is as much of a salon idol as he is a favorite in the three-quarters of a million homes reached by this newspaper.

CHARLES DANA GIBSON

Artist. In all America no name is more familiar than Mr. Gibson's. "The Gibson Girl" and "The Gibson Man" are types created by this clever artist which will go down to posterity. His drawings will be found illuminating the pages of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine.

ALONZO B. WENZELL

Artist. Mr. Wenzell's name is familiar to the reading public as being identified with illustrations which depict society types and scenes. His clever brush is now busy making pictures in connection with several good stories soon to appear in the American Sunday Monthly Magazine.

HARRISON FISHER

Artist. Another recent acquisition to the staff of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine, whose illustrations are almost as much of a feature of some of today's "best sellers" as the stories themselves. If Mr. Fisher could fully supply the demand for his work he would be a millionaire within a year.

NELL BRINKLEY

Artist. A woman whose highly individual types of American youth of both sexes are of such inimitable attractiveness as to have created a Brinkley vogue which promises to be as permanent as it is widespread.

JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG

Artist and Writer. Mr. Flagg's virile drawing has won him a place among the foremost American illustrators, and it is a high tribute to his writings to say that they are as clever almost as the product of his brush.

Quality writers attract quality readers, but quality is not to be confused with any certain class. The Boston American is NOT a class newspaper. Its appeal is to the higher instincts of humanity as a whole. And in this appeal it has found a vast following because it has developed a spirit broad enough to embrace ALL worth-while classes. Only by such broadness can a man or an institution be great.

The American would be less of a newspaper if it had either preference or prejudice where its readers are concerned. Through the breadth of its scope, the quality of its writers and the character of its contents, it has developed a happy combination—to buy, and who, because they reason, are responsive to advertising's appeal.

MELVIN FIRE PROBE BEGUN BY GRAND JURY

The special session of the Suffolk County Grand Jury called to investigate the mysterious fire in the Melvin apartment house at No. 1315 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, in which eight lives were lost, today began the probe under the personal direction of District Attorney Pelletier.

Twenty-six witnesses were summoned, among them Mayor James M. Otey and Building Commissioner Odorn.

A unusual incident was furnished spectators in the corridors of the courthouse when Fire Chief Peter McDonough, summoned as a witness, was notified of a fire alarm which had just been rung in from box 138, in the "danger zone," at the corner of Empress and A streets. Without waiting to be excused by the Grand Jury Chief McDonough left on his waiting automobile at the curb and ordered his chauffeur to drive to the fire.

WITNESSES SUMMONED.

Th witnesses summoned include: JAMES A. STEWART, owner of the Melvin Apartments.

ANGUS M'IVER, janitor of the Melvin, who discovered the fire.

RICHARD HAWKE, assistant superintendent of fire alarms, who will testify as to the condition of the fire alarm system nearest the scene of the holocaust.

PERRY H. BAKER, proprietor of the Hotel Princeton, who claims to have pulled the hook when he opened the door of the box the first time, but who was said to have only opened the door of the box when told to rig in the alarm.

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY, patrolman from the Brighton station, who said the ball on the box rang when Baker pulled open the door.

WILLIAM J. HERRIBROOK of No. 113 Blue Hill avenue, a painter, who will testify regarding the presence of paint cans in the basement of the Melvin prior to the fire.

LIEUT. JAMES SLACK of No. 2 Ferdinand street, wireman for the telephone company, who worked on the wires in the basement of the Melvin the day before the fire, and who will testify to the generally overheated condition of the basement.

FRED C. GRAVES, of No. 16 Long avenue, one of the first to discover the fire from the outside, and who helped hold the life net.

PATROLMAN DAVID STUART of the Brighton station, the day officer who was on the police line in the basement and who commented on the presence of heat in the basement.

SERGEANT THOMAS TAYLOR, who made a careful survey of the premises after the debris was cleared away.

STATE POLICE OFFICIALS THOMPSON and WEDGER. Wedger is State chemist and lives near the scene of the fire.

CLEMENT A. ROGERS, tenant of the Melvin, who made several rescues.

GEORGE B. MAGRATH, medical examiner of Suffolk County.

CAPTAIN AINSLEY C. ARMSTRONG, of Police Headquarters.

INSPECTOR OF POLICE JAMES DENNESSEY.

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY.

BUILDING COMMISSIONER PATRICK O'HEARN.

GEORGE HEALEY, who lives in the house adjoining the Melvin, and will testify as to the delay of the apparatus and the street railway at the blaze before the arrival of firemen.

MEMBERS OF LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON FIRE LAWS—Herbert A. Wilson, former city engineer of the city of Boston; Henry B. Bothfield and Charles L. Lawler.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Over in France they are having considerable success with a new road surfacing material, which would seem to possess inherent possibilities for the purpose. This material is known as "iron straw," and it consists of iron shavings in a wiry, fibrous mass, mixed with cement and sand. The iron shavings used are not waste in any sense of the word, but are produced by specially designed machinery. Roads surfaced with "iron straw" are said to be particularly adapted for withstanding automobile traffic.

It has been announced that the Chicago Automobile Club has decided to run the classic Elgin road races on August 21 and 22, instead of the dates originally announced, which were August 28 and 29.

The Ford Motor Company of Detroit has placed a large order with the Hendee Manufacturing Company of Springfield, makers of the Indian motorcycle, for a fleet of Indians for service work. This is the Ford company's first venture with motorcycles, and they adopted the same only after a very close study.

CITY LIGHTING PLANT FAVORED BY FIN. COM.

At today's session of the City Council will be read an attack by the Finance Commission on Mayor Curley's proposed new $2,000,000 street gas lighting contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

It is the Finance Commission's first open break with Mayor Curley.

The Finance Commission asks that the City Council reject Curley's proposed contract. It declares the contract is loosely drawn.

The Finance Commission urges a municipal plant, and points out that the city can get better lighting for less money.

A report on Curley's proposed electric lighting contract, which has been generally attacked, is promised later.

CITY NOT PROTECTED.

"To the honorable, the City Council:

"The commission, after a study of the proposed gas lighting contract, is of the opinion that it does not protect the city in many essential points, for examples:

"1. The contract calls for furnishing lights of 60-candle power and the test is to be a laboratory one. Such a test would not give a fair test of the light under service conditions. The test should be made upon the street; that is, where the light is.

"2. The method of testing lamps for purposes of fixing the amount of penalty to be paid to the city failure to comply with the conditions of the contract is not workable.

"3. The clause which provides that the number of lamps furnished under the contract shall not be at any time less than 95 per cent. of the number of lamps in service at the time of the approval of the contract by the Mayor is objectionable. It would bind the city to maintain 2,500 gas lamps for the next ten years. It might be advisable in the near future to do away with gas lighting altogether.

"The city should be allowed to discontinue as many lights as it may wish to, although in fairness to the contractor the scale of prices should be agreed upon whereby a higher price would be paid per lamp as the total number of lamps was decreased.

"4. In the matter of arbitration the contract should be drawn more definitely, so that if any automatic devices are adopted there should be no question that the city would receive its share of the saving in cost.

NEGLECTS FIRE ALARM.

"There are other minor defects in the contract and specifications, among which may be enumerated the fact that no provision is made for the care of fire alarm lamps. These lamps have been considered at a separate price in previous contracts.

"Conditions have changed somewhat since the last report of the Finance Commission on the question of gas lighting with a municipal plant. Some have stated that because the cost and some to decrease the cost of municipal street lighting. The causes which have tended to increase the cost have been higher pay or labor and the increase in the number of lights. On the other hand, under the present plan there has been a reduction in the duty of street lamps and supplies, and this reduction will have a material effect in decreasing the cost of street lighting by lighted lamps, such as the Gratsian lamp.

"Under the pending contract, the cost to the city is $21 a year per light. If the upright lamp is to be continued in use in this city the price of $21 per lamp is, in the opinion of the commission, not unreasonable at the present time.

"If, however, automatic lighters are installed, it is possible that the cost to the city would be reduced to $19.33 per lamp per year. If the city should install inverted mantle lamps of the Gnetain type, automatic lighters might reduce the cost to $15.35 per lamp, or 78 cents lower than the price that the city might obtain under the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. The city, however, would secure a greater volume of light and better distribution.

"At the end of ten years the city would be in possession and ownership of a complete plant and would be free from all the entanglements of contracts for lighting the streets of the city with gas.

"Respectfully submitted,
"THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
"John R. Murphy,
"Chairman."

WALSH FINDS POMEROY'S MIND IS FAILING HIM

Jesse Pomeroy, for thirty-six years a solitary life prisoner at the Charlestown State prison, is suffering from illusions, a visit by Governor Walsh to the institution has revealed. One of the signs of a failing mind is that Pomeroy thinks he is wealthy.

Pomeroy, in talking from his cell to the Governor, complained that he was gradually going blind, and also that the warden had failed repeatedly to send Pomeroy's bank book to his aged mother. This, Governor Bridges explained afterward, is an illusion to which Pomeroy is constantly subject, since no bank book exists.

Governor Walsh spoke to 748 of the 752 inmates of the prison, being the first chief executive to address the men at a regular Sunday service. He was repeatedly cheered, and later, during an inspection of the prison, the convicts vied with one another for a chance to shake hands with him.

Governor Walsh said, in part:

"If I could find good causes and good reason, and no injustice real or fancied other man as I could see it, there is not a man here that I would not be glad to give his liberty. First of all, I stand for no favoritism in the granting of freedom to any man. The influence of wealth, of politics, of race and creed shall have no bearing with me in giving any man his liberty. I want a square deal for every man, giving each every possible measure of consideration and mercy that can be given to him without doing an injustice to any other man.

"Each individual case must be studied and thought out on its own merits. The Governor should ask himself: How does this case affect fifty or a hundred men who have done no worse and are still confined and cannot be freed for one reason or another? Mercy and clemency always and ever, but never let mercy and clemency work an injustice on another man.

"We are living in an age and a time when the government, perhaps for the first time in the history of this Commonwealth, is concerned more with the problems that directly deal with you. We are realizing today that the functions of government are not so much to make her a wealthy and prosperous one as they are to make a government of strong, vigorous and healthy men and women.

"My words to you are words of hope. There is hope and a chance for every man here."

Poison Candy for Woman Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—The literary colony of Carmel is mystified by the sending of poisoned candy to Miss Alice MacGowan, sister of Grace MacGowan Cooke, both of whom are well known writers.

Miss MacGowan found a can of marshmallows in the refrigerator at her home, and not liking candy, gave it to her Japanese servant. The Japanese was found in his room writhing in pain a few minutes later.

Swing Out on Rope to Escape Flames

Cut off by flames on the second floor of the two-story wooden building at Congress and A streets today, Alfred Lewis swung himself out a window and down a rope to the ground. The building is owned by the Boston Wharf Company and occupied by Dwight Smith, dealer in wool waste. Fire started by spontaneous combustion beneath the stairs and resulted in $7,000 damage. It is the second fire recently in the building.

Fitzgerald Picks Flaws in Armor of Mayor Curley

Former Mayor Fitzgerald picks out weak spots in Mayor Curley's armor and launches some shrewd strokes in this week's Republic. Here are a few of the passages:

It is poor economy to cut down appropriation for public celebration, Mayor Curley, like Mayor Hibbard, will find this out. It is particularly hard when economies come at the expense of small children.

* * *

Fire threatened the Zoo last week and owing to Mayor Curley's economics there were no park employes on hand to quench the blaze. If it had not been for the volunteer band of citizens who got to work in two different places an awful scene might have resulted.

* * *

The Mystic River appropriation went through the Legislature the other day for the full amount and Mayor Curley's Boom Boston Fund is not to contribute a dollar. We refer in another article to the Mayor's buncombe. This Mystic River matter is one of many examples of his bombast.

* * *

The auditor's statement shows an increase of $10,000 in May expense over May of last year in the Fitzgerald administration. By and by people will come to understand that Mayor Curley's economies while eliminating some pure and unfortunate people without Curley political backing has resulted in placing a large number of his own backers to work under the protecting wing of John A. Sullivan.

* * *

Everywhere criticism is found of the action of the Civil Service Commission in its handling of appointments submitted by Mayor Curley. The charge that everyone this body is remarkable and the public is not fooled. The query is, What is the price the administration is to pay? It is generally believed that Mr. Boyle will accept a City Hall position. It is hinted that he would accept Mr. Noyes' place on the Transit Commission, and that this job in the job that he really seeks. What a humiliating spectacle, yet not a single newspaper in Boston, outside the AMERICAN, has uttered a word.

Norwegian Consul Victim of Slayer

TUNIS, May 11.—The body of Slezvar Batt, the Norwegian consul in Tunis, was today found alongside the railway track half way between this city and Biserta. Mr. Batt had been murdered upon a train, a bullet having been fired into his back. His body had then been thrown from a compartment by the murderer. The French military authorities are investigating.

Lowell Man Safe at San Louis Potosi

LOWELL, May 11.—William F. Egan of Lowell has received word from Washington that his step-brother, Walter Fogarty, a Mexican City hardware dealer, is safe at San Luis Potosi, with his wife and son. Wilbur L. Bonney, American Consul at San Luis Potosi, notified the State Department that Fogarty and his family have determined to remain there for business reasons.

TOLLS REPEAL INVITES WORLD WAR WITH U. S.

—Ex-Secretary Knox.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Speaking with the voice of authority, ex-Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, who had practically settled the controversy with England over the tolls question when Senator Root made his speech as an advocate of the British cause and had it reopened, has issued a statement which places the American case on unimpeachable grounds.

The former secretary points out significantly that Great Britain never asked that President Wilson or the Congress to grant—the absolute repeal of the exemption to coastwise ships.

All she asked was that the exemption be restricted exclusively to coastwise trade and held that the tolls must be computed upon the basis of all shipping using the canal.

President Taft met this contention by so predicating the tolls. In this striking manner Mr. Knox shows that Great Britain had abandoned every claim she had previously had in mind, and that only pressure or the invitation made through Senator Root's speech did she evolve a protest, the unsoundness of which she had previously admitted.

Of the three reasons advanced by President Wilson why Congress should repeal, Mr. Knox said if repeal were necessary, the United States is included within the words "other nations" he characterizes as the application of a "childish logical formula."

Pointing out that the United States is building the Panama Canal at an expense of $400,000,000, Mr. Knox further declared:

"We alone are expending the untold millions necessary to fortify and protect the canal so that some belligerent, eager to secure the resulting advantage, may not destroy it. We alone are bearing the risk of losing all this investment as the result of some natural cataclysm, such as earthquake, against which human agency can secure us. We alone have stood for whatever of criticism has come in the manner of acquiring the Canal Zone—a criticism encouraged by the very class which now seeks to turn over to Europe as a gratuity the benefits of our action. We alone have put the lives of the flower of our army engineers and of thousands of American citizens through all the hazards and dangers of fatal tropic maladies; and finally, no other country has shared and does not propose to share, one penny of this expenditure or any phase of any risk connected with our stupendous undertaking.

"INVITATION TO WAR."

"Does not such a view of our rights invite any nations to war with us if we, during an actual state of war, use the canal for any military purposes? In short, would we not thus make all nations the allies of our immediate adversary if we have agreed with Great Britain and Great Britain that the rules we prescribe for the use of the canal apply to ourselves, the grantors of the use?"

HUERTA COMPLETELY HEMMED IN; CUERNAVACA AT GATES OF CAPITAL TAKEN BY ZAPATA

MEXICO CITY IS NOW "THE CITY OF DREAD"

By THOMAS P. COATES.
Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

VERA CRUZ, May 11.—President Huerta's capital is now the "City of Dread," General Emiliano Zapata, the barbarous cutthroat, whose depredations have terrorized Southern Mexico for several years, has captured Cuernavaca, according to information received here. Cuernavaca is only forty miles from Mexico City.

Tampico has fallen, or is about to fall, to the rebels. Saltillo is menaced by General Villa's brigade.

Vera Cruz is in the hands of the Americans.

Matamias, several times reported captured, cannot hold out much longer.

President Huerta's power is steadily crumbling. He is awaiting the end, and at the same time [illegible] conscience are sharing his vigils, wondering what is in store for them when the capital falls to one or the other of the fierce revolutionary leaders.

CUERNAVACA FALLS.

News of the capture of Cuernavaca by Zapata, the man who delights to call himself the "Attila of the South," was brought here by William Smiley, who came out of the capital on a refugee train that left Friday.

He had fled with a number of other Americans from Cuernavaca, and the train on which they were taken to the capital was fired upon by the Zapatistas. Federal soldiers guarded the train from Cuernavaca to Mexico City. Two of them were killed by rebel bullets and a number wounded.

The passengers escaped injury by lying on the floors of the cars. Smiley said that before Zapata opened his attack on Cuernavaca he sent this demand for surrender to General Breton, the Federal military governor:

"Sir, I have the honor to inform you that I have absolute knowledge of the scanty garrison of Cuernavaca. My superior force will enable me to take the city forthwith, but, being desirous of avoiding loss of blood by your troops, we are prepared to receive terms you deem convenient for your capitulation."

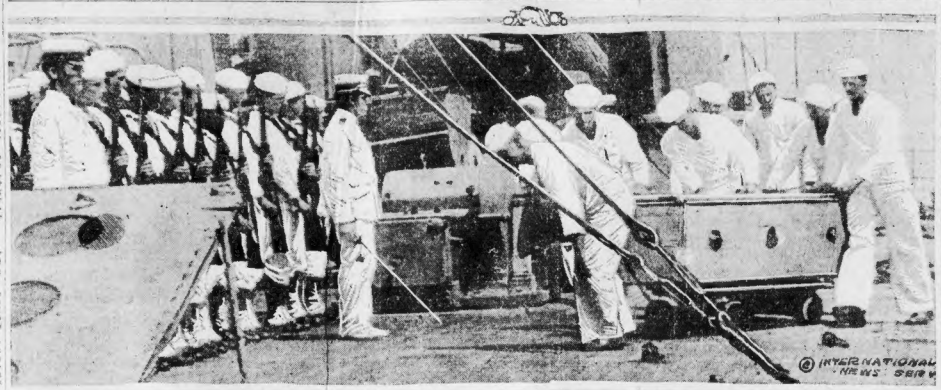
STRENGTHENS OUTPOSTS.

Breton's only answer, said Smiley, was to strengthen his outposts, and Zapata immediately attacked from the south.

Reports from Tampico were anxiously awaited here today. There were rumors that the oil town had been captured, but no official advices to this effect had been received up to 7 a. m.

The Ward liner Mexico sailed under rush orders yesterday afternoon from Vera Cruz, and should reach Tampico today. This vessel will receive refugees taken out of the town while fighting between the Federals and Constitutionalists proceeds.

Private Charles Cannon, the marine who accidentally shot and killed Private Andrew Saunders of Buffalo while examining a revolver on Sunday, was placed under close guard today to prevent any attempt at suicide. Cannon is heartbroken as he and Saunders were close friends.



Casket of one of the U. S. Marines killed in Vera Cruz being conveyed to the forward superstructure of the Montana, attended by the armed guard of bluejackets. During the voyage to New York and at the ceremonies there today the caskets were constantly attended by this guard of honor. The coffins were especially constructed to allow the relatives of the dead to gaze upon the features of the heroes within.

RICH AMERICAN WANTONLY SLAIN BY FEDERALS

TORREON, May 11.—James Beard, a wealthy American, was wantonly murdered by General Benito Arguemdo, leader of Federal bandits.

Beard was killed because it was an American, according to the investigation of United States consul Hamm of Chihuahua. The murder occurred at Parras.

On arrival at Parras, Argemendo asked if there were any Americans in town. Told there was one he ordered him brought before him. Beard produced State Department papers showing he was an American citizen, which Argumendo threw in Beard's face.

Beard was taken into the street in front of Argumendo's headquarters and shot to death. His citizenship papers were pinned to his body.

General Villa when told by Consul Hamm of Beard's murder declared he would catch Argumendo and kill

BAY STATE MILITIA TO VOTE ON WAR DUTY

It was learned today that if the Massachusetts militia is called upon by the War Department for service in Mexico, an emergency hourly expected, each organization will be given the right to decide whether or not it will respond.

In other words the first proclamation for volunteer troops would be more optional than mandatory, and every man in the militia, even to the latest recruit, will be vested with voting power.

Under secret regulations issued by the War Department to the militia in the various States, it will require a three-quarter vote of each regiment to go to the front.

The organizations will hurriedly assemble in their armories and vote through Assistant-Secretary Breckenridge, termed "surplus," are fully a score of officers who cannot stand the physical tests. They and the surplus officers will be weeded out before the end of the week.

YOUNG MEN READY.

the Bay State troops, because able. Their going will not embarrass young men are ready to fill the vacancies. It is not likely that Governor Walsh will make public the list of officers to be dropped, in consideration for their feelings.

The Governor feels that the men who have become disabled in the service should be given every possible courtesy.

They will be permitted to resign or to be honorably retired for disability. The Board of Military Survey appointed by the Governor has decided to follow out to the War Department's instructions to the letter. We will meet again this afternoon and make our recommendations to Governor Walsh in person.

In this way matters will be expedited and weak spots removed. At the present moment Massachusetts could send between 7,000 and 8,000 well disciplined militiamen into the field within five days. The fact the State has no Adjutant-General is no handicap. Today the Board of Survey will hear from the quartermaster's department. Equipment is the first thing to be passed upon. We want to have the men fitted out in the event of rush orders.

"What they lack most are shoes and overcoats, which should have been supplied months ago. The quartermasters' report will also deal with wagons and other field equipment, and whatever is needed will be promptly furnished.

HUERTA DELEGATES OFF TO NIAGARA FALLS

By HARRY H. DUNN.
Special correspondent of the Boston American.

VERA CRUZ, May 11.—President Huerta's delegates to the mediation conference at Niagara Falls sailed for Havana today on board the German liner Kron Prinzessin Cecilie. From Havana they will proceed to Key West and thence by train to Niagara Falls.

The three delegates, Emilio Rabasa, Augustin Rodriguesz and Louis Elguero, were accompanied by their families and a corps of attaches, the entire party numbering about thirty. At the last moment the delegates were joined by W. F. Buckley, an American lawyer, who has collaborated with Senor Rabasa in legal work in Mexico City. His presence was requested by Senor Rabasa. He will go to Niagara Falls with the delegates.

Senor Habasa, who is chairman of the delegation, said that neither he nor his colleagues had received definite instructions, but would outline their plans on the trip and meet emergencies as they might arise.

"Will recognition be discussed by President Huerta's government?" Senor Rabasa was asked.

"We have received no such instructions yet but I think that a likely basis of action," he replied.

Senor Elguero talked more frankly. "We are sure of the success of our mission," he declared. He paid a tribute to the American soldiers who guarded the party into Vera Cruz after they had left the territory controlled by General Maas.

The three delegates are of three types. Elguero is short and stout and apparently deeply impressed with the importance of his mission. Rabasa is like a pert, Yankee and though the youngest of the three, being about forty-five years old, appears the reserve. He is "camera-shy" and dodged the photographers at every opportunity. Rodriguez is about seventy years old and walks with a limp because of the partial paralysis of one leg. He has a "grandfatherly" air, but apparently looks to the two younger men for guidance.

HINT 'EVENTS' MAY DELAY MEDIATION

By W. J. MADDOX.
Staff Correspondent of the American at the State Department.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Secretary of State Bryan was in full charge of the Mexican situation today in the absence of President Wilson, who was participating in the national tributes to the Vera Cruz dead in New York.

The "A-B-C" mediators met to prepare for the conference at Niagara Falls, and the American delegates to that meeting also conferred for a short time.

When the main mediation conference begins on May 18 the following will take part:

LATIN-AMERICAN ENVOYS—Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil, Minister Naon of Argentina, Minister Suarez of Chili.

AMERICAN DELEGATES—Justice Joseph R. Lamar, Frederick W. Lehmann.

HUERTA DELEGATES—Emilio Rabasa, Luis Elguero, Augustin Rodrigues.

It is understood that Ambassador Da Gama will preside.

HINT AT DELAY.

Mystery was added to the mediation situation today by a hint that the mediators might not be able to open their formal proceedings next Monday. This hint came from Senor Naon. "It all depends on the events of the next few days," he said. "We are supposed to be in Niagara Monday. This is all I can say at present."

While the Argentine minister refused to elaborate on his statement relative to "Events of the next few days," his manner gave the impression that the mediators are preparing for unfriendly acts on the part of the United States or Huerta, which would require their presence in Washington.

Officials here were concerned mainly over the Tampico situation and a new protest from Huerta, who claims the United States has broken the truce by seizing the lighthouse on Lobos Island, south of Tampico. Reports that Maximo City was approaching a state of revolt against Huerta added to the general confusion.

There was evident relief in administration circles following Admiral Badger's report that the munitions of war the Kron Prinzessin Cecelie was understood to be carrying to General Huerta were still aboard that ship.

Officials of the War and Navy Departments admitted the seizure of Lobos Island probably had been ordered by Admiral Badger to prevent its destruction by Huerta's agents. Lobos Light is one of the most important aides to navigation on the east coast.

Huerta's protest, sent to the mediators by his foreign minister, asserted that in seizing the lighthouse the United States had violated the armistice. Officials here say Huerta already had violated not only the armistice, but every principle of humanity and international law by ordering the extinguishing of all the navigation beacons on the west coast of his country.

Evidence of the gravity with which the War Department looks on the Mexican situation is given in a circular order being sent out by the adjutant general's office asking all former enlisted men to report their availability for service in case of emergency.

By this means the department hopes to get into touch with several thousand men who have seen service and would be more desirable than "raw recruits."

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF
Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get a bottle of arvon, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail. —ADVERTISEMENT.

To Honor Our Vera Cruz Dead Finish the Task They Began

Today New York lovingly cares for the bodies of our men-at-arms slain at the taking of Vera Cruz. New York for the nation mourns the noble dead, and so doing honors the noble living who hold our far-flung battle line on the shores of the Mexican gulf. To maintain the nation's honor, to establish a sanctuary wherein Americans beset by the Mexican foe might find safety, these men died, and thousands, ready as they to dare death, remain behind to finish the task which they began.

Many racial stocks were fused in this little band of sailors and marines who died as true Americans fighting for the Stars and Stripes. Their names betoken Irish, French, German, Hebrew, Scandinavian and Italian origins. For the last offices to the dead and the consolation of those left behind priests, rabbis and Protestant clergymen were summoned. But for them all there was but one country, one flag, one duty, which they fulfilled to the point of martyrdom.

The nation does well to thus honor the first fallen in a cause which is the cause of civilization. These men gave their lives that red anarchy should no longer run riot over the land of our nearest neighbors to the south. They were as truly soldiers of the common good as though they had died beating back some alien and barbaric horde that menaced our own land. The "invasion" which they led was one fraught with the greatest possibilities of good to the law-abiding people of the country upon whose shores they fell. The banners they carried bespoke civilization as against barbarism, and progress and good order kept step to their bugles.

Today let the millions in all parts of this land, dedicated to human liberty and progress, reflect upon what one of the noblest of American statesmen said upon a day of commemoration and mourning more solemn even than this. The President and those who do honor today to the dead of Vera Cruz do not stand on the actual battle ground as did Lincoln at Gettysburg, but though the text of his noble oration may, therefore, need some slight change, its spirit applies now and here as it applied then and there:

"The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; THAT WE HERE HIGHLY RESOLVE THAT THESE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN."

2,000 MEN IN GUARD TO HONOR HAGGERTY

The Cambridge committee in charge of arrangements for the burial of Corporal Daniel Haggerty, who died in full at Vera Cruz, today received word that the cruiser Montana left New York at 3 this afternoon for Boston with the body.

The Montana will arrive here at about 10 a. m. tomorrow. The committee at once concluded arrangements for the funeral.

When the Montana arrives the undertaker will go aboard. At 1 o'clock the bodies of Haggerty, Rufus Percy and Walter L. Watson will be landed.

Tuesday afternoon and night and all late Wednesday, the body will lay at the Haggerty home. Wednesday afternoon and night it will lie in state at the Cambridge Armory, and Thursday the formal funeral services and interment will be held.

FIRE NAVAL SALUTE.

Harbor craft will greet the ship on her way in, and a naval salute fired from the Charlestown Navy Yard. She will berth at Pier No. 1, in the navy yard. Commander Coffman will be in charge of the military ceremonies which will follow the disembarkment of the bodies. Under escort they will be conveyed to City square and the North Station.

An escort of Salvation Army members under Colonel Adam Gifford will convey the body of Percy in a special train to Concord, N. H., where it will be taken in charge by local members of the Salvation Army. The burial services will be conducted Thursday or Friday, and elaborate plans have been made for the occasion.

Marines and bluejackets will bear the body of Watson to the South Station, where it will be escorted to Keene and taken to the home of A. and Mrs. E. L. Knowles at Eastman, his foster parents. Appropriate services will be held, the townspeople taking in the ceremonies.

HONOR FOR HAGGERTY.

The body of Corporal Haggerty will be taken in charge by his family and twenty-five members of the Tri-mountain Garrison, Regular Army and Navy Union, U. S. A., who have pledged themselves to stand guard over the body from the time of its arrival until it is laid at rest in the Cambridge Cemetery. The guard will march from Charlestown to the Haggerty home, No. 16 Harding street, Cambridge. The body will be conveyed in a flag-draped hearse. The escort will be in charge of Joseph Bisanti, a former "buckie" of Haggerty, who has been detailed by the government to remain with the body during its long journey from the Mexican coast.

On the wall of the room just above where the casket will be placed is an engrossed copy of resolutions drawn up by the members of the House of Representatives and signed by Governor Walsh, which states the high sympathy which the State of Massachusetts has to give the family of Daniel A. Haggerty. A special committee of Representatives visited the small home on Harding street recently and handed the copy to Mr. Haggerty.

After remaining at the Haggerty home the night following the arrival of the battleship at Boston, the body will be taken to the State Armory on Massachusetts avenue, one of the largest in the State, at 4 o'clock the next afternoon and will lie in state for the rest of the afternoon and until 9 o'clock the next day, when the funeral procession will march from the armory to St. Patrick's Church, at the corner of Berkshire and York streets, a distance of a mile and a half.

A detail of men will stand by the casket as it lies in the armory. A regiment under command of Colonel Graves will be drawn up in concentric squares on the big floor space. Over 2,000 soldiers and sailors will remain on duty while the people pay their last tribute.

At 9 o'clock the funeral procession will start. It is expected to be the largest cortege ever gathered for a funeral in New England. At St. Patrick's Church a requiem mass will be held. The march will be from the Esplanade, Wadsworth street, to Kendall square, Thord street, Cambridge street, Berkshire street and thence to the church.

Plans for Haggerty Funeral in Boston

3 p. m. this afternoon—Cruiser Montana left New York for Boston.

Tomorrow afternoon and night—Body will lie at the Haggerty home in East Cambridge.

All day Wednesday and probably that night—Body will lie in state at the armory in Cambridge.

9 a. m. Thursday—Funeral cortege leaves armory for St. Patrick's Church, Cambridge, for the funeral mass.

WILSON EXPRESSES GRIEF OF COUNTRY

to the navy yard afterward to deliver the funeral oration.

With a precision born of long practice the sailors and marines of the battleship Texas, who were assigned to escort the bodies to Brooklyn navy yard, formed into line of march at Pier A beginning at 4:30. Half an hour was allotted to the officers in getting the lines formed. Following the sailors were the members of the various military and civic organizations who took part in the procession. Headed by twenty-four mounted policemen, the cortege moved between a solid line of faces flanking Broadway on both sides, toward City Hall. The make-up of the cortege was as follows:

CORTEGE ARRANGEMENT.

Mounted police.

Bands from the battleships Texas and Wyoming.

Battalion of bluejackets from the Wyoming.

Battalion of bluejackets from the Texas.

Naval militia band.

Caissons with bodies flanked by riders and national guardsmen.

Carriages containing distinguished representatives of the United States government, the navy and the army and New York State and city.

A detachment of mounted police.

There have been larger and greater parades. Had it been desired there might have been one of the greatest civic and military turnouts the city ever saw, but the idea of every one, from the President down, was to have the cortege and everything connected with the memorial as compact and as simple as possible. This made it more impressive.

Throughout the city all flags were at half mast.

In addition to the enormous crowd which thronged Broadway, Park Row and Nail street, round City Hall there were seventeen Spanish War veterans, 200 members of the civic committee, eight hundred school children and several hundred delegates from patriotic organizations.

As the funeral procession drew near the school children sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

WILSON REVIEWS CORTEGE.

From the residence of Colonel House, President Wilson drove to Pier A, where he was joined by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Governor Glynn and a number of other prominent participants. The President's carriage was one of the first to fall into line when the procession started and at City Hall, Mr. Wilson viewed the sailors, marines and soldiers as they filed by.

The arrival of the thirteenth gun caisson, with its flag draped coffin, was the signal for the procession to halt at City Hall.

The scene there was one to be remembered. Massed about in the streets stood thousands of men and women, most of the former with bared heads. From the windows of all the neighboring buildings and the roofs peered thousands. The flag on City Hall was at half mast and waved lazily in the morning breeze.

PRESIDENT AFTER CAISSONS.

When the procession moved from City Hall, the President's carriage followed immediately behind the caissons. Each caisson was drawn by four horses, a cavalryman sitting upon the back of one of them to guide the team. They were flanked by mounted police and National Guardsmen.

Center street was choked with people and the line fell behind, but the police soon cleared a lane, and the troops swept by with the caissons rumbling over the paving stones.

The first carriage was occupied by President Wilson and his party. The President was bareheaded most of the time, responding to the salutes of the spectators.

OCCUPANTS OF CARRIAGES.

The occupants of the other carriages were:

Second — Secretary Daniels, Governor Glynn, Lieutenant-Commander Jones, U. S. N., and Captain Robert E. Coontz.

Third—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Borough President George McAneny, Lieutenant-Colonel R. Foster Walker and Colonel Daniel Appleton of the National Guard.

Fourth—Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port of New York; General George Barnett, Captain William McDougall and Colonel Henry M. Rogers.

Fifth—Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N.; Captain M. Hilton, Adjutant-General Henry De Witt Hamilton and Lieutenant-Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Sixth—General Horace Porter, former Mayor Seth Low, Surgeon-General William C. Braisted and Corporation Counsel Frank Lyon Polk.

Seventh—Herbert L. Satterlee, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy; General Anson G. McCook, Theodore Reusso, private secretary to the Mayor, and Professor H. Fairfield Osborne.

PROCESSION HELD UP.

President Wilson was a few minutes behind his schedule in reaching the navy yard, the procession having been held up by the enormous crowds which jammed the streets. At the navy yard about fifty thousand people were massed behind the ropes stretched about the parade grounds, twenty thousand more were in the streets and grouped upon nearby housetops.

The parade ground area was set aside for the placing of the caskets and for soldiers and officials. The nearest line of lay spectators was about 200 feet removed from the speakers' stand. So great was the crush when the head of the funeral procession arrived that a number of women fainted and others were injured by being jostled.

As the bluejackets from the Texas and Wyoming drew into the yard the marine bands played a dirge. These sailors took up positions near the speakers' stand.

ROUTE OF PROCESSION.

From City Hall the route of the procession was through Centre and Canal streets and across Manhattan bridge to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where accommodations were arranged for 10,000 spectators. Simplicity was again the keynote for the service at the navy yard, the program there being:

Invocation by Chaplain William G. Cassard of Annapolis.

Funeral oration by President Wilson.

Benediction by the Rev. Father John P. Chidwick, chaplain of the battleship Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor.

The salute of twenty-one guns for President Wilson upon his arrival at the navy yard involved an interesting touch of personal sentiment. Secretary of the Navy Daniels explained it by saying:

"The President told me and asked me to have his idea conveyed to those firing the salute that he wished them to think that the twenty-one guns were not in honor of himself, but in honor of the boys who gave up their lives for their country."

A detachment of mounted police and several members of the motorcycle police squad were assigned to escort President Wilson as well as a squad of secret service agents in motor cars.

WILSON WITH BARED HEAD.

The caissons drew up right in front of the speakers' stand, while President Wilson looked on with deep realization of the solemnity of the occasion in his eyes and the lines of his face. Bluejackets from the Montana were drawn up as an honor guard for the President. Nearly thirty minutes' time was taken up in removing the caskets from the caissons to the ground. President Wilson meanwhile stood with bared head.

Chaplain W. G. Cassard of Annapolis began delivering the invocation at 11:16, and seven minutes later President Wilson began the delivery of his address. He had finished in less than fifteen minutes. The President was followed by Rabbi Wise, who delivered a prayer.

Just before Chaplain Cassard began speaking there were a few moments of excitement caused by a reformation of the lines in order to allow spectators nearer to the speakers' stand. Except for the splendid service of the sailors a riot would probably have resulted and men fought with one another to get advantageous places. Rabbi Wise was followed by the Rev. Father Chidwick, who delivered the benediction.

PREPARE TO SHIP BODIES.

Preparations were made for the immediate shipment of the bodies after "Taps" had been sounded at the navy yard. The remains of Walter L. Watson, Rufus E. Percy and Daniel A. Haggerty, all New England men, will be carried to Boston on the Montana. The names of the other dead are Louis F. Broswell, Gabriel A. de Fabbio, Francis P. de Lowery, Frank Devorick, S. C. Fisher, Louis O. Fried, E. H. Frohlichstein, Dennis Lane, Samuel Marten, George McK. Poinsette, John F. Schamacker, Charles Allen Smith, A. E. Stream and Randolph Summerlin.

Scenes were affecting scenes when relatives received the bodies of their dead, three of the victims being residents of this city. They were Lane, Schumacher and Stream. Relatives were allowed to board the Montana before the bodies were taken from the cruiser and the features of the dead sailors and marines were displayed through the glass tops of the coffins. The relatives of the slain warriors burst into uncontrollable weeping. In speaking of the ceremonies, Secretary Daniels said:

"We have come to pay our last respect to the men who lost their lives at Vera Cruz and to express our appreciation of the spirit in New York manifest in the arrangements for the ceremonies here. Unfortunately Secretary of War Garrison could not come."

MAYOR MITCHEL PAYS HIGH PRAISE TO REED

Mayor John Purroy Mitchel's tribute to the memory of the Vera Cruz heroes was as follows:

"The people of New York pay their solemn respects to the honored dead, to the stricken families of them most. Their loss is irreparable. Nothing that we can do can mitigate it. But to the American people their loyalty and sacrifice is a new inspiration. Their deaths have driven home to the entire nation the awful significance of war, but the sacrifices they have made will be glorified by the part these men, who gave up their lives at Vera Cruz, have played in America's attempt to bring peace to a sister republic.

"MISSION OF PEACE."

"These men gave their lives, not to war, but to the extension of peace. Our mission in Mexico is not to engage in conquest, but to help restore to a neighboring republic tranquillity and order, which are the basis of civilization.

"The highest tribute paid in this hour to the dead at Vera Cruz is the renewed pledge of loyalty to the nation, its honor and its service inspired by their brave deaths, and the heightened resolution of all people to enter whenever the need arises the path of patriotic service which these men followed so gallantly.

New York, which gave three of these men to the nation, receives them in sorrow, but will remember them with pride.

Then the Mayor placed a wreath upon one of the caissons as a symbol of New York's tribute of honor and sorrow.

As Mayor Mitchel ended his address, scores could be seen putting handkerchiefs to their eyes. It was not alone the pathos of death that brought tears, but the sight of the blue clad ranks and the recollection that thousands of other men in blue were at this moment in Mexico facing a hostile foe.

CUP RACER DEFIANCE LAUCHED AT BATH IRON WORKS TODAY

M'CARNEY BACK IN RING GAME; HAS NEW 'HOPE'

SOUTH TONIGHT.

At Montreal—Johnny Lore vs. K. O. Brown.

At New York—Young Kansas vs. Paddy Callahan.

At Philadelphia—Soldier Kearns vs. Jim Coffey.

At New Orleans—Kid Herman vs. Kid Williams.

At Milwaukee—Bob Moha vs. Frank Mantell.

At London, Eng.—Joey Bowker vs. Dastillon.

At Joplin, Mo.—Lew Alberts vs. Bobby Waugh.

By JACK CONWAY.

BILLY McCARNEY, who was manager of the late Luther McCarthy, has discovered another "white hope," and he believes that his latest protege will be able to hold his own with the leading white heavyweights. Al Norton, a husky Western giant, is the young man of whom McCarney expects so much. Norton has been boxing for only two years, but has shown remarkable promise.

Norton knocked out "Kid" Kenneth, the Pacific coast heavyweight, who recently stopped Arthur Pelky. McCarney's "hope" will receive a severe tryout Friday night when he clashes with Bob Moha in a ten-round encounter in Kansas City. Moha is able to give a good account of himself against the best of them and should carry Norton along at a merry clip.

THERE are few boxing promoters and managers who have been as unfortunate as Billy McCarney. He is one of the friendliest and best liked men in the boxing game, but seems to be followed by a jinx. He started his career in Philadelphia, where he promoted bouts and managed boxers. He developed several good performers but each time they were in line for some fat purses they would meet with a hitch and McCarney would have to begin all over again. Billy finally became disgusted with the game and went to Cleveland by fate in Philadelphia and went West in quest of a fortune.

McCARNEY located himself at Springfield, Ills., and started to promote boxing bouts. At that time every boxing promoter and manager in the country was looking for a "white hope." They all realized, as they do today, that the man who could discover a big colored fighter would beat Johnson would make a fortune. McCarney was also on the lookout for a "white hope" and when Luther McCarthy asked him to be his manager McCarney agreed to do so.

McCarney secured McCarthy a match with Carl Morris, who was the best advertised white heavyweight in the world at that time. The contest was staged on May 5, 1912, and Morris was a heavy favorite before the bout. McCarthy, however, startled the sporting world by knocking out the Oklahoma giant.

McCARNEY was naturally elated over McCarthy's victory. He felt that Dame Fortune had at last smiled on him. A million dollars at the very least seemed to be his portion. McCarthy was a big, powerful fellow with a great punch in either hand and besides he was a nimble man on his feet as a young panther.

The big fellow made good with a vengeance. He knocked out the Ironclawed Jim Flynn, while he sent the stalwart Palzer reeling through the ropes. The skilful Frank Moran, who is to fight Jack Johnson in Paris in June, was but a child in McCarthy's hands.

AND then McCarney matched McCarthy with Pelky. Pelky had never handled a genuine champion under his management, but he was anxious to pilot him to the top of the pugilistic ladder by slow and careful steps. He was desirous of teaching him the fine points of the ring game and hardening the muscles of his giant frame before pitting him against Johnson.

McCarney believed that Pelky would be easy for McCarthy. Pelky had never shown very well and had been beaten by third raters. But in his tussle with McCarthy he landed an unfortunate punch which caused the latter's death. And Billy McCarney's hopes were shattered once again.

AFTER McCarthy's death, McCarney declared that he was through with the boxing game for all time but he has evidently changed his views on this question. Fate is still treating McCarney harshly as he recently lost the sight of his right eye. He is still able to see with his left eye but the sight of that optic is impaired by the extra work which it is obliged to do.

BOXING "fans" all over the country would like to see McCarney's latest protege succeed. They believe that McCarney has had more than his share of trouble and that his ring efforts should at last be crowned with success.

HARVARD CREW FAILS TO SHOW ANY PROGRESS

By E. W. SOUCY,
Member Harvard Varsity Crew.

The past week did not bring any advancement to the Harvard varsity crew. Although five afternoons of hard rowing were put in, the varsity did not show sufficient improvement to warrant any display of satisfaction from Coach Wray. On the contrary, he was so dissatisfied that he made a shift on Friday as a result of a half-mile race on Thursday, in which the varsity was defeated by the "seconds" by half a length.

There was enough racing during the week to give each crew plenty of experience. On Tuesday, a two-mile paddle between the varsities and first two freshmen was won by the first varsity by three-quarters of a length.

The next day found the two big eights racing over the two-mile course, the "seconds" leading the greater part, and only by a desperate finish were the first men able to win by only half a length.

These races simply go to show how evenly matched are the two crews. It has been the same story all season long. At no time has the varsity been able to defeat the "seconds" by open water.

The climax came Thursday when the "seconds" defeated the varsity in a half-mile race. The two crews men crews were also entered, but did not figure in the finish at all, the race being between the varsities. This half-mile brush was merely to give the men practice in rowing a high stroke.

The "seconds" were able to hit a higher stroke than the varsity and kept together throughout the race, whereas the first boat simply went to pieces, each man trying to row the boat alone and not giving any thought to rhythm. The work of the firsts was very wretched, not that they did not work hard enough, but because they could not get together.

FAULTS CROPPING OUT.

Individual faults are beginning to creep in, the most important ones being the slide work, the catch and the finish.

The men are having the same difficulty with their slides as they had the first of the season—rushing down and hanging at the catch. This cannot help but check the boat between strokes.

Coach Wray has been trying to get the men to time the slide so as to reach the end of it just in time to catch the water. As a matter of fact, the catch has been too sloppy and generally nor is there enough force at the beginning.

While the crews were at Annapolis they seemed to have mastered the finish, but since their return to Cambridge they have gradually lost it. The trouble is that when the men work on the catch they get careless and lose sight of the finish. Another thing to which Coach Wray has been devoting much time is the bounce-up or lift finish of each stroke, since this helps to give life to the boat.

While the varsity has had its troubles, the "seconds" have gone on and made the most of the week's coaching. No matter what men Coach Wray takes out of this boat, it always manages to get together again. The success of the "seconds" is probably due more to Charlie Lund, than to any other man. He has stroked the boat the whole season and never has been defeated by the varsity by open water.

He has very good rythm, which the men behind him find easy to follow. He only handicap is lack of experience; he is an unknown quantity as far as a big race is concerned. He stroked a very good race against the Middies' second crew, but the Harvard "seconds" had this race won before they started.

SECONDS OFF TO HENLEY.

What he would be able to do against a Cornell crew is problematical. Chanler, on the other hand, is very experienced and never loses control of himself in a race. He is better in a contest than in practice. As it was, Lund was given a short tryout with the varsity on Friday just before they took their long row. It would be unfair to compare him with Chanler, as he only worked with the varsity a few minutes.

The "seconds" will leave Cambridge Thursday night for Philadelphia, where they will compete in the Henley, being entered in the senior division. They will be accompanied by the coxswainless four, which will also row.

Last Wednesday this crew crushed this how of the only coxless four-oared shell that the management had, and it looked as if Harvard would not be represented. But the Union Boat Club came to the rescue and offered Harvard the use of one of their shells, which the Crimson gladly accepted.

Yesterday Charlie Schall, No. 7 on the varsity boat, was sent to the infirmary, having a case of swollen glands, which will probably keep him out for a few days.

The order of the crews as they established the week was:

VARSITY A—Stroke, Chanler; 7, Small; 6, Harwood; 5, Soucy; 4, Morgan; 3, Curtis; 2, Lovell; bow, Reynolds; cox., Sargent.

VARSITY B—Stroke, Lord; 7, Meyers; 6, Paine; 5, J. W. Middendorf; 4, H. Middendorf; 3, Murphy; 2, Read; bow, Schlesinger; cox., Coolidge.

COXLESS FOUR—Stroke, Chichester; 3, Hersey; 2, Crane; bow, Sherow.

Breezy Gossip of Sport World

WE have with us today the ancient but still honorable quiz as to which gentleman is the more valuable to a team—Walter Johnson, the pitching person, or Tyrus Cobb, who does everything but pitch.

The answer is simple—Johnson is more valuable, despite the wonderful, uncanny, all-around ability of the Georgian.

Much marvelous though he is, it but one cog in a machine of nine cogs. His position as an outfielder does not require only a portion of the defensive play. But a pitcher is the main cog—the real cog. Upon him stands the greatest portion of the defense. In fact, every defensive play of the game depends first upon him and his pitching arm.

IF a pitcher is going "right," it needs but little offensive work on the part of his teammates to bring home a victory. But if the pitcher loonies, and the opposition begins to falter around his twists and shifts the official scorekeeper usually proceeds to chalk a defeat against the team that own that wobbling pitcher.

NOT since the Federals pried open the season and outdrew most of the organized majors, has Han Johnson been rushed to the fore with any remarks about "joke." Nor has "Garrulous" Garry Herrmann murmured "boner-blood" when anyone mentioned the Feds. And Charles "Hollister" Ebbets, the Brooklyn magnate, no longer gribs from ear to ear, no longer holds his aides to suppress boisterous glee when somebody hazards the remark that "it looks as if the Feds are THERE."

JOHN McGRAW, whose fame through being his "Scrappy Infield" has almost overshadowed the fact that he's the $50,000 manager of the Giants, boasts of the greatest collection of base stealers in captivity.

Hock, the new third backer, stole forty-three bases while with Mobile last year, and is running wild this season; Merkle pilfered 58 sacks in 1913; Beschor, 28; Murray, 35; Burns, 40; Doyle, 28, and Fletcher, 37, which gives McGraw seven regulars with a grand average of something like 35 bases.

TIM COFFEY, the Irish White Hope, who soon journeys to England to scrap with Bombardier Wells, the oil burning Britisher, entered the ring through accident.

He harpooned a job as subway guard soon after arriving in New York from Erin. One day some rowdy youths boarded his train. In the polite, refined manner that subway guards use (at times) Jim asked the youths to desist. They desisted—not. Whereupon, Jim waited for a station stop and then began heaving the youths off his train. He did it with such ease and dispatch that he won the admiration of Mike Donovan, the old welterweight fighter, who was on the train.

MIKE walked to the vestibule and engaged Jim in confab. Mike told Jim that he thought he had the makings of a fighter in him. Jim wasn't sure.

"Come up to the New York Athletic Club and I'll give you a tryout," invited Mike.

Jim came. Mike showed him a few tricks in the fighting game and then matched him with a husky person who had "white hope" hopes. Jim knocked all the hope out of that fellow in two rounds. Then he went home, wrote out his resignation from the subway job and began keeping his huge frame within the puglistic spotlight most of the time since.

BUSY WEEK IN PROSPECT FOR HARVARD NINE

The Harvard baseball team this week begins to stack up against some really strong teams and by the end of the next seven days a good line on the team as a candidate for the collegiate championship should be obtainable.

The crack Fordham aggregation will appear at Soldiers Field tomorrow, and its appearance will mark the hardest tussle the Crimson has yet had on its own batteground. The New York outfit has had very good luck against the strongest college teams in the country, and Coach Sexton will have to show everything Harvard has to get away with the battle.

Frye is due to pitch in this contest, though Mahan, who is coming along like a racehorse, may be stunted in to get a real tryout against a hard-hitting outfit.

If the old football hero is not used Tuesday, he will be sure to show Thursday when the University of Vermont arrives looking for a Harvard scalp. The Green Mountain boys are no small shucks when it comes to playing ball and the fracas should act as a good developer for the team.

On Saturday the nine plays its first game away from home since the return from the Southern fit, meeting Penn at Philadelphia, and here again one more very close mixup seems to be in line. The Quakers have had it out with a lot of the good teams, and have a fine record to show for it. Hitchcock will be used in this game, if the regular assignment of pitchers is followed out.

The practice work between games will be devoted to perfecting team play, as the positions as at present filled will be held throughout the season, barring injuries. The smooth working machine now needs just a little polishing up to give its best results.

OUIMET TELLS PLANS FOR BIG GAMES ABROAD

SANDWICH, England, May 11.—Francis Ouimet, the Brookline, Mass., golfer, has established permanent training quarters here, and will spend most of his time between now and the championship on the links where the title is to be decided. He looks better than he did a week ago and says he feels fine, and in speaking of his plans said:

I seem to be getting over that heavy feeling I had a while ago. I find that it is better not to try to do too much over here, and my schedule of practice is much lighter than at home.

I am paying more attention to improving a few particular strokes than to trying for low scores. I hope to make a showing which will please the home enthusiasts, but the more I see of the British players the more impressed I am with their abilities.

From an American standpoint, I am glad there is such a good sized Yankee Relegation entered for the championship, for if one falls down another ought to be in the running. There are half a dozen British cracks, all of whom look awfully good. Hilton especially seems at the top form of his playing career.

Ouimet's driving has greatly improved in the last few days. He spent most of last week playing over the St. George's Hill course and got some splendid distances. In his putting he is achieving a greater degree of accuracy and reliability.

Herreshoff and Travers are keeping under cover and spend most of their time playing over the Sandwich course.

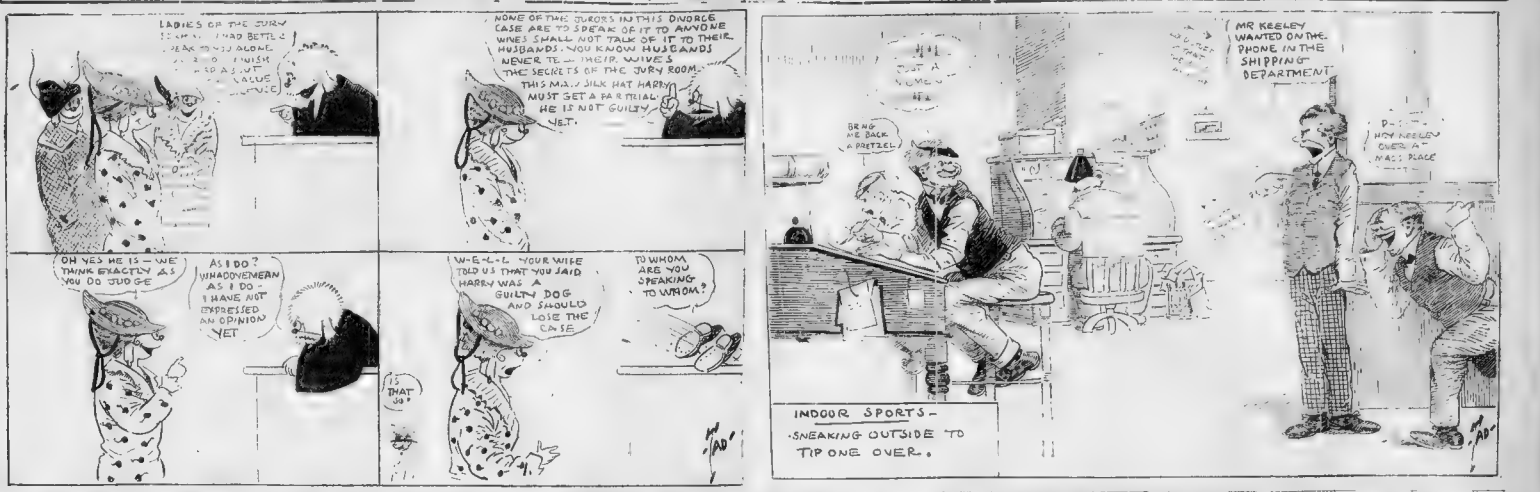
CHANCE'S YANKS MAKE FINAL STAND TODAY AGAINST RED SOX

SILK HAT HARRY'S DIVORCE SUIT | By Tad | INDOOR SPORTS



RAY CALDWELL TO FACE SOX IN LAST GAME

The lively Chance Yankees play their last game of the present series with the Red Sox at Fenway Park this afternoon and then the noble tribe of Carrigan commences on a set-to with the Western representatives, starting out with St. Louis tomorrow.

Today's battle promises to be an effort to even up the count in an effort to even up the count. This particular twirler hasn't been busy plastering the pretensions for the Yankees, but since the time winning games in the early days his last couple of starts have resulted in easy wins for his team.

As he went along at the end of last season at just about the same pace, his form is not an accident, and unless something happens to the Red Sox batting there's a Babe Ruth or less glooms hanging around the Yankee Polo Grounds when the Highlanders wend their way.

For Boston, Hank Gowdy is due like a good bet for the assistant cash of the hurling business, as he only pitched two innings Saturday and ought to be ready to come through.

However, young Mr. Foster, who had the extreme pleasure of pinning out the present invaders in his start last Thursday may be sent back to repeat the dose.

Whichever one of the pair draws the job looks to be up against a mighty tough proposition, though of course, in baseball the hero of today is more often the scapegoat of tomorrow than not.

COBB SAYS 1ST PENNANT FIGHT IS NOW ON WITH WEST'S INVASION OF EAST

By TY COBB.

American League fans are awaiting with a great deal of interest the first Western invasion of the Eastern section of the circuit. It has been very thoroughly established that the Tigers and White Sox, despite the latter's first slump of the season when eight games were dropped in succession, are the class of the Western clubs, with the Detroit team rating rather better than its Windy City rival, because of greater batting strength. Now what the doperters want to know is how will the two strong outfits from out of the West fare with Philadelphia, Boston, Washington and New York.

Until the Tigers stacked up against the White Sox in their first series, it was said that we owed our proud position in the race to the fact that we had been scrambling off the "junk" in St. Louis and Cleveland, "nuff said." Anyway, now that we have shown that Chicago has no terrors for [illegible] Comiskey Park, "Wait until they go East and watch how we Detroit Red Sox are. Nationals kick the wadding out of them."

COBB NOT AFRAID OF THE MACKS.

Well, so far as I am personally concerned, the impending jaunt to the Atlantic coast has no terrors for me. I will admit that the Athletics are a hard club to beat in Philadelphia—my averages show, for that matter—but when our team was up fighting for pennants we used to lick them, and now that we have struck our stride again, I expect us to return to form as Mack knows.

Washington we could whale even last year when we finished sixth, and we make a fair showing again.

Boston.

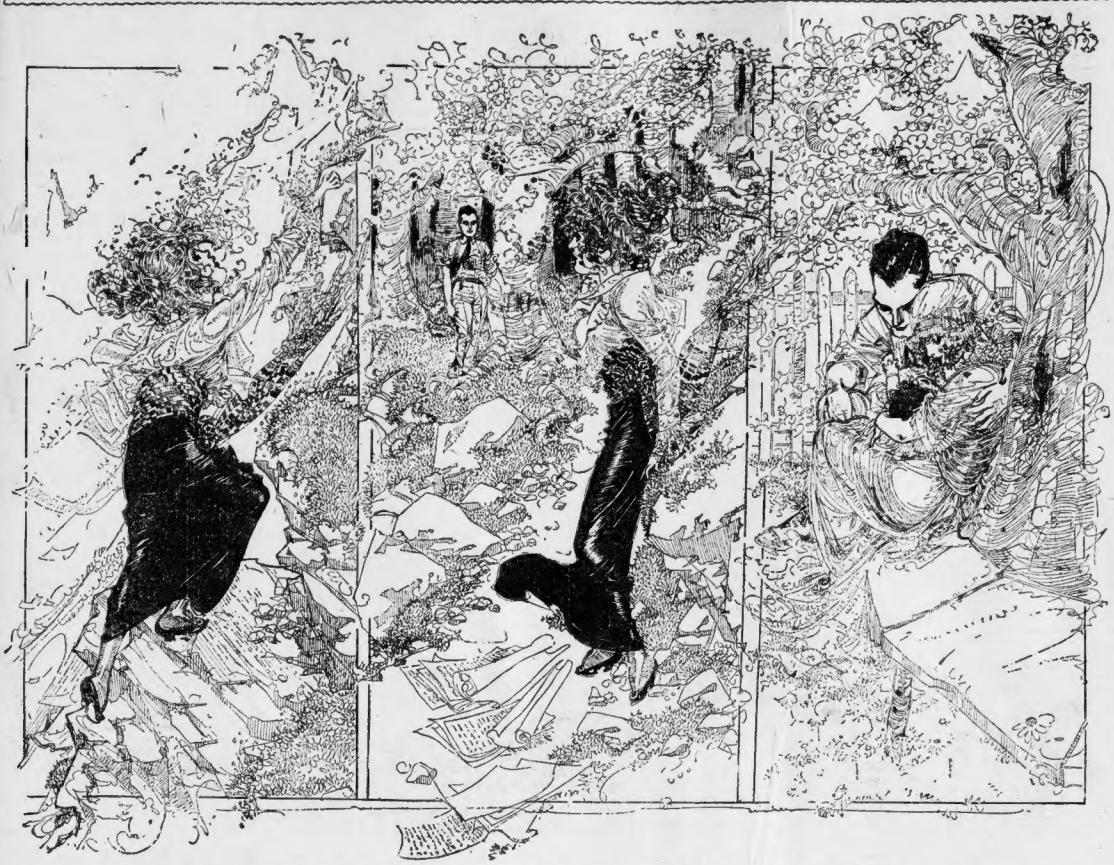
Ambition's Trail---And the End!

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

By NELL BRINKLEY



MADEMOISELLE GALLANT-HEART turned her eyes to the high, gold summit of Ambition. Above all the miles of brown earth and homely things, folks who dug in the earth and mated, saved, and ate, and slept, and clutched little grubby hands tight in theirs—all this was valley country, you see—above this valley country of peaceful ungliorified things loomed, against the deep-blue sky, the thin, shimmering, dream-veiled, luminous pinnacle of Ambition! And the Girl with the Gallant-Heart sniffed in her nostrils the odor of the Laurel Crown and walked like one in a night dream, unseeing, through the valley and into the rocky trail that mounted like a frail bit of ribbon flung by the white hand of a god up the great wall of the Mountains of Fame. You see, the Girl could write, and, somebody said, marvelously! So she tucked her sheets of "stuff" under her brave round arm and set a small soft foot to the long trail. Well, there were tears, a-course, and the sweat of her temples ran into the salt of the tears and made one river down her chin, and she stubbed her toes and scuffed out the shine of her "Mary Janes" many, many times. Sometimes she fell—and her hair grew tangled and fell over her hot straining eyes, and the dust of the trail settled on her brightness and tarnished the gilt of her hair. And sometimes the wind-bent grass and shrubs she tugged at to drag her hard-breathing little body up over a stiffish place, gave way and ripped out by the roots. It was pretty bad, but through the tears and the sweat the rose-hued, blinding-bright height soared sweet to her eyes! So she toiled like a wild bee with the first wind of Winter ruffling his wings.

And one bright day when the way was smoother and the summit standing clear and blue in the crystal air, on the last hurrying stretch, she lifted her eyes from the trail—and out from the gloom of the hillside forest that closed in here on her path a MAN stepped strongly, and stood, half smiling with a beckon and a call in his eyes, his brown arms strong for loving and labor, youth painted on his lips and lean cheek-bones, and his heart pulsing away under the skin of his shirt! How did she know this was the forest of Romance, and that the way of ambition for a maid must wind through its spellbound shadow for a space? And that heaps of the Gallant-Hearted had left the trail right here?

She couldn't, you see.

You know the end! Her sheets of wonder-work lay in the dust, forgotten, the vision of the luminous peak faded out of her conjured eyes, and she turned to meet the MAN! And when he wound his fingers close in hers and faced her about for the peace of the valley country, she went gally at his side, snuggled close, and singing a little song about Narpesos, who jilted a god for a man!

And down in the peace of the valley country, where are homely things, folks who dig in the earth, and mate, save, and sleep, and clutch little grubby fingers tight in theirs, the Girl with the Gallant-Heart sat beneath her wide roof-tree with the end of the trail in the hollow of her arm! And sometimes she lifted her eyes and saw lifted against the deep-blue sky, the thin, shimmering, dream-veiled, pinnacle of the mountain of Ambition! But its lure was gone and it struck no fire in her eyes and heart. "I went half way," she laughed to the Man from the Woods of Romance. "I lost and yet I won! Some day—I may help YOU to win there, my Very-Dear."

CHAPTER TEN

Daubrais Is Disappointed

ON the way down to Madame Barberin's, Daubrais rubbed his hands together and chuckled to himself at what he considered the cleverness of his scheme. He knew that the child himself would be only too glad to leave what he always believed to be his home, in the hope of seeing his own mother. And no matter how bitter a disappointment it might be to the Barberins, there would be absolutely nothing they could do in the face of such absolute facts.

"Aha," he said to himself, as the machine drew up in the humble little yard "hardly a very aristocratic home for our little heir to be brought up in. However, what do children care about surroundings as long as they have enough to eat?"

Barberin was not at home, and Madame Barberin, somewhat overpowered at the magnificence of her caller, and the fact of his arrival in a big machine, hardly knew how to answer Daubrais' questions at first.

"I have come about a child that I understand your husband picked up in the streets some years ago," said Daubrais suavely, drawing off his gloves. "Perhaps you would call him out and let me see him; you see his real parents have just been able to trace him, and I have been commissioned to come here for him."

Madame Barberin seemed very much impressed and she curtseyed deeply to the elegant stranger. Yes, they had brought up a child that her husband had found on the streets of Paris, but he had left them some time ago. He had been apprenticed to a street musician and of late they had no news of him whatever. The tears rolled down Madame Barberin's fat cheeks and Daubrais could see that she was speaking the truth. Decidedly his plans would all come to nothing unless the child could be found and that shortly. Of course, he had the satisfaction of knowing that Lucile would not be able to trace him, either; that was something, but it would be so much better to have him in a place of his own choosing.

"How am I to know that this child you speak of is the one I am looking for?" said Daubrais finally. Madame Barberin wiped her eyes on her apron and hurried over to the closet, from which she took a little bundle of clothing.

"You can see for yourself, sir," she said, still crying softly. "And he was the dearest baby. I never wanted to part with him at all but Barberin got tired waiting for the money, and times were poor, but there hasn't been a day that I haven't wanted him back."

The baby clothes proved beyond all doubt that Remi had lived with the Barberins since the night he had been picked up, and as there was nothing more to be done in Chevanon, Daubrais rose to go.

"If you ever hear of this little Remi," he said as he was leaving, "notify Garth and Galley, Green Square, London, and they will return the child to his family. I will write it down on this piece of paper for you, so that you will be sure to remember." And handing her the slip of paper, Daubrais was off for London.

And all this time Remi had been living with the kind old market gardener who had received him into the family and who had treated him like a son. Remi had been very happy, but of late reverses had come, and the jolly old farmer had all he could do to make both ends meet.

One morning when things seemed to look darkest, Remi announced to the family that he thought it all out and had decided that it would be best for him to leave. The farmer looked up hastily to protest, but when he saw the understanding on the boy's face, and the determination to leave at all costs, he let his head fall on his arms again. After all, perhaps that would be the easiest way out. But it was only with a great many tears on the part of everyone that Remi finally departed.

Remi had not walked far before he came out on one of the busy streets of Paris. So close had he kept to the house since he had lived with Arcueil that he had almost forgotten how very close to the city the cottage was situated. It seemed rather good to see Paris again. He had always liked the noise and bustle of the streets, and for the first time since that day long ago he wished vaguely for Vitsli.

Suddenly he shrank close against the stone of the building he was passing. It would never do to be recognized and Barberin was passing. He looked more prosperous than when Remi had seen him last, and he was talking excitedly to the man who was with him. And then like a happy dream all the good times that he had had at Chevanon came over him, how good Madame Barberin had been to him. Perhaps she would be glad to see him again, anyway for a little while, and it wasn't such a very long way to Chevanon, not too far for him to walk. So with a new bound of hope in his heart Remi trudged on, his hands thrust deep in his pockets and a merry song on his lips, a little soldier of fortune, willing to take life as it came, and thankful that he was alive and that everything in the world was bright and fair, and his to conquer if he would.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROWTHS NO LONGER NECESSARY

The keen mental suffering of women troubled with unsightly hair growths is totally unnecessary. Such growths can be removed instantly and harmlessly, without the slightest fear that the hair will grow more heavily than before. Saturate the hair with a few drops of El Rado, the painless liquid hair remover; in a few moments the hair will vanish, leaving the skin soft, smooth and perfectly clear.

While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time; its action is absolutely harmless, simple and thorough. When the hair finally does reappear it is finer instead of coarser, and can instantly be removed again for a still longer period than at first.

El Rado is becoming as standard a toilet article as face cream or talcum powder. Thousands of society women use it. As a remedy and aid to good looks, El Rado has no equal, for there is not a beauty competition in the world that can imitate a clear, attractive brow that the successful removal of an unsightly hair growth. Try a few drops on your next visit; learn for yourself El Rado does everything claimed. Your money back if not entirely satisfied. Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

PA & Ma & me went caver to visit our new nabors last nite. Thare naim is Cummings & Missus Cummings was caver to the house with her dauter two days ago so we went to see them. Pa didnt want to go, but Ma looked at him & sed We start at 8, so Pa was the first one redy.

Mister & Missus Cummings was nice peepul, but thare dauter was awful swelled up. She had just, calm from sum gurl college & her father & mother thought that she was the brightest gurl in the world. The only reason I liked her was beckaus she is very pritty, & Pa always told me that thare was sum good in everybody & you look for it longest in a pritty gurl than in a tramp. Her name was Sara.

The minnit we got in the house Mister & Missus Cummings sed Sara Jest won a essay con-test in her skool. She rote the best essay on the influens of the mind over the earthly part of mankind. She is going to rite novels after she has grown up.

How interesting, sed Ma, that is what we are going to make out of little Bobbie, a author. He has the long, slim fingers of a georgius, & I feel sure that sum day he will malk his mark.

You can't always go by long, slim fingers, sed Mister Cummings. Lots of pickpockets has them. Did you son ever rite anything that won a prize & how much literature has he read?

Bobbie is too young to have read much literature, sed Pa. By the time he is as old as yure dauter he will be pritty well posted on literature. What have you read, Miss Sara? Pa asked the gurl which had just won the priss.

Oh, sed Miss Cummings, I have red nothing lite. All I read is the works of the masters, like E. P. Roe & Elinor Glinn. I love thare pulsing, throbbing novels, she sed. It makes one feel so much in touch with the infinite, dosnt you think?

I dosnt think, sed Pa.

& I think the Chambers novels are so in-tense, she sed. All the time you are reading one of them you feel the vi-reel, powerful caveman power of the man with thos thare definite lines. His heroes are the kind of men that do things, that work with thare branes & thare hands & that crush to thare harts the fra-gile & half-willing bride at the end of the story. Thare is sumthing so compelling in the way they compel us gurls, dosnt you think.

I dosnt think sed Pa.

Sara goes into these things deeper than most of us, sed Missus Cummings. It is a gift the heavens sayd to her, she sed, & we propose that no stone shall be left unturned until her palm becums immortal.

That is all I wish for, sed Sara Cummings. I dosnt care for very much of this erth. I only want the reesonabel luxuries of this life, but I want to know that my novels & poems shall be deathless. I want my naim to ring down the corri-dors of time, she sed. I have the feeling here in my hart, she sed, that one day I shall awake & find myself famous, like Lord Byron. Dosnt you think I have a chanse to awake sum day & find myself famous, she asked Pa.

Household Suggestions

The pain of burns can be allayed by soaking the injured part in a strong solution of washing soda. This is a very simple first-aid treatment which is always available in the home, and it should be used as soon as possible. When the part is well soaked, the burn should be covered with a thick layer of boric gauze, which not only prevents the air acting upon the burn and making it more painful, but assists the healing of the wounded flesh.

To improve the flavor of currants and sultanas, which are to be used for cakes, place them in a bowl, pour boiling water over them, and leave, should be drained from the water and then to soak all night. The fruit dried in the oven before being added swells to twice its former size, but to the other ingredients.

ELEVATED STRUCTURES CALLED MENACE; HOW WILL SENATE VOTE?

The Massachusetts Senate will again consider, on Wednesday, a bill providing for the removal of the elevated railway structure on Main street, Charlestown, and in Washington street from Dover to Dudley streets.

What is this bill? How much have Charlestown and the South End and Roxbury suffered from the dreadful structures? Is it true that nobody objects to their removal except the Company?

The AMERICAN has submitted these questions to Representative Peter Tague of Charlestown, a Boston business man who is also the Democratic leader of the House of Representatives.

This is Mr. Tague's reply to the AMERICAN request

By REPRESENTATIVE TAGUE.

The rancor of the city is the elevated structure, wherever it exists.

It is slowly but surely eating out the vitals of the city's resources and the resources of the city property.

It is slowly but surely undermining the health of the community which it was originally intended to exist.

Three of the leading neurologists, one of whom is Dr. Putnam of the Harvard Medical School, gave it as their opinion that it was a menace to the public health.

Ex-Chief Justice Mason of the Superior Court found that the cause "occasioned by the operation of the elevated railway was such in colgion, character and extent as that but for the statute authority would constitute a private nuisance of a grave character."

The City Council has passed a resolution asking the Legislature to remove the structure and to build a subway in its place.

The Charlestown, South End and Roxbury Improvement Societies have passed resolutions in favor of the removal of the structure and the substitution of subways. The United Improvement Society and the Boston Chamber of Commerce are in favor of its removal.

Twice the Legislature passed resolutions upon bills looking toward the removal of the elevated road, asking the Transit Commission to investigate the best method of accomplishing the work.

1-7 BLOCKS LEGISLATURE.

Last year's Legislature passed a "permissive" bill, looking to the removal of the elevated road from Charlestown, but the Elevated Company refused to accept its provisions and the effort failed for the Legislature by the structure removed and subways substituted was fruitless on account of the opposition of the Elevated.

This year the House has passed a compulsory bill without a dissenting vote. There was only one man in the whole House to argue against it, and that man admitted that the elevated road was a nuisance and ought never to have been allowed in the streets of the city.

COSTS CITY $2,800,000.

The owners of property, and tax payers generally, now ask the Legislature to correct a terrible mistake, as the result of which they have had to suffer for the past fourteen years.

They come before the Legislature and they present evidence which shows conclusively that the City of Boston has lost $2,800,000 per year for the last fourteen years and from an automatic cut in the tax valuations of real estate; that the structures have paralyzed completely $75,000,000 worth of property in Charlestown, in the South End and in Roxbury as far as Dudley street; that between the Dudley street terminal and the Charlestown terminal station there have not been more than sixteen to twenty new buildings erected in a period of fourteen years, and that practically no new buildings have been constructed on the side streets immediately adjacent to Washington street and Main street.

REFUSE MORTGAGES.

The petitioners showed that savings banks and trustees, having money to lend on mortgages, refused to take any mortgages whatsoever, at any price, on property in Charlestown or in the South End or Roxbury wherever the elevated road was within hearing distance.

Those who held mortgages when the elevated road came, in many instances, took all the damages which the property owners received from the company and have been compelling owners to keep reducing their mortgages.

Rents have dropped to an alarming extent; vacancies have been numerous; the class of tenants has lowered; expenses have increased on account of the jarring which comes from the elevated structure and the dust and dirt which it raises; the obstruction to light caused the necessity of more artificial light; conditions have gone from bad to worse.

No real estate operator wants to have anything to do with property facing the line or nearby on the side streets. Hence building has absolutely stopped, the older buildings have become older and there have been no new ones to take their places.

One of the gravest mistakes of law-making and judicial fix took place in the hands of any corporation the right to take private property and practically fix whatever compensation they choose. It is hollow mockery to claim that "the courts are there for the protection of the individual property holder."

Ask any property holder along the elevated road if he received adequate damages and he will answer "no."

GREATER THAN PEOPLE.

The Elevated claim that they have "a right in perpetuity" on the streets with their elevated structure. They say they propose to stay there; that they built their road under a contract with the State, giving them this right in perpetuity — a law which the State has no right to take it away from them no matter how great the suffering they cause may be to the city, its property holders or its taxpayers.

In 1851, after the decision of the Dartmouth College case, our Legislature passed a law which established the right to amend or repeal the charter of any corporation which was thereafter authorized.

The company says, in substance, that they are greater than the sovereign power over the streets for which the city spent millions and on which property holders have invested millions in property.

Why the Legislature in 1887 bargained away the rights of the people whom they represented, for all time, without receiving anything in return, it is difficult to understand. Although the people in 1894 voted for the reconstruction of an elevated structure they HAD NOT voted to give the Elevated road a right in perpetuity in the streets. This the Legislature did, in 1887. Yet lawyers may well ask how this was accomplished, when no such legislation had been passed for nearly one hundred years.

But it must not be forgotten that there is vested in the Legislature what is called the "police power." That is a power which no Legislature can bargain away. It is the power to make laws "for the public benefit."

Attorney-General Dana Malone said that the elevated road could be removed without the payment of one dollar of compensation to the company. He wrote in this opinion that "under the police power the Boston Elevated Railway Company might be required at its own expense to remove its elevated structure from Washington street, notwithstanding the existence of a contract between such corporation and the Commonwealth and of a further contract between such corporation and the city of Boston, represented by the Transit Commission."

The petitioners presented evidence (which was not even disputed by the Elevated Company) to show that the city, instead of losing each year $210,000, as it has for fourteen years, would, if the subway was built and the elevated taken down, wipe out its loss, take care of its sinking fund and earn a profit each year of over $150,000. They calculated that the plan now proposed would increase the values of $75,000,000 worth of property at least 15 per cent. by the removal of the elevated road and the building of the subway; that property values would increase 2½ per cent. each year over the average increase throughout the city) which in ten years would make a splendid showing in the taxes; buildings would be constructed and the whole district prosperous.

The bill has attached to it a referendum, to be voted upon at the next city election of this year.

The opponents to the bill in the Senate are some of those Senators who have no interest whatever in the city of Boston; in other words, some of the out-of-town Senators.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong today, but there was not much business on any exchange. At the opening the upward movement of Saturday was continued and there was no reaction. While demand was limited, selling pressure appeared to have become of the slightest character. There was a disposition to cover. But for that markets would have been even duller. Traders are in more of a waiting mood than ever evidently.

By afternoon in New York the list averaged much higher than at the start, and among gains were Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian Pacific 1½, Southern Pacific ½, Missouri Pacific ½, Reading 1¼, Lehigh Valley 1⅝, The Gulf Company 1½, American Telephone ¼, American Can ½, Steel ½, Amalgamated ½, Great Northern preferred 1, Northern Pacific ¼, Baltimore & Ohio ½, Union Pacific 1½ and Utah Copper ¾.

In Boston among advances were Greene-Cananea 1⅝, New Haven ½, American Sugar ½, Butte & Superior ¼, Granby 1, North Butte ⅛ and Alaska Gold ⅛. United Fruit had declined 2 and Osceola was off 2. FIRST PRICES RANGED HIGHER.

When the New York market opened prices ranged higher, although in London Americans had been averaged a little lower. In fact on the foreign bourses there no response was made to the strength in New York at the close of last week. But this was attributed to the general depression of the markets there as reflected by a decline in consols, lack of demand for all kinds of home investments, the high discount rate and the scramble for gold. The Mexican situation continues to cause a tight crop prospects in this country in the eyes of Londoners. Uncertainty prevailed in financial circles. Sentiment had not changed for the better in Berlin. EARLY GAIN LOST.

Once more was Missouri Pacific regarded with great interest in New York, and it made a fractional gain at the start. Regarding the letter in which Kuhn, Loeb & Co. declined to undertake Missouri Pacific financing it is apparently implied that the Gould interests propose to get control of the road should furnish funds to save it. The bankers do not think a receivership is necessary, but Wall Street understands that the Goulds are not averse to foreclosure proceedings. Within three years the road will need in all more than $50,000,000 and the bankers say that unless a certain amount of the new funds is furnished without involving the payment of fixed charges, Missouri Pacific cannot be made a sound property. Many persons have an idea that the Gould crowd there has been a halt that something is pending which will provide the road with funds. It will not.

TRADING VERY QUIET.

Trading was very quiet this morning and without any unusual feature. During the first hour share transactions on New York totalled about 70,000. But with dullness there was strength. No immediate development in the war cloud was expected, it was argued that if Eastern railroads are allowed a freight increase, as appeared to be generally expected, such a factor would have enough bullish effect to overbalance any bear effect of the threat of war already. During the noon hour, which was the second one today, the tendency was upward.

Nothing had developed during the morning hour, but the leading stocks in question prevailed that some of the largest financial interests were taking a hand in the market. Prices took a spurt. Steel was strong. It is said that the short account in this issue is very large. Also the leading stocks Union Pacific showed the greatest gain and Reading was higher. Trading was fairly indifferent, but 100,000 more in gold had been engaged for export. There is such an abundance of money in the market and trade is so quiet, that loss of yellow metal is deemed of little consequence at this time.

UNITED FRUIT WAS WEAK.

Weakness of United Fruit was the feature of the local market, it selling down several points before making a partial recovery. There are rumors that this corporation is to do some financing soon. The local market opened very irregular today, but the tone improved. Greene-Cananea showed the largest gain at the end of the hour. Business was very quiet on the local exchange.

CANADA NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants were off 1s. 3d. at the close. The market was firm this morning and noon spot and futures were 1s. 3d. higher.

April pig iron production in this country showed a comparative decrease of 77,812 tons.

During the nine months ended by March imports of finished manufactured articles decreased about $25,000,000.

Shipments of gold from New York to Europe tomorrow total $3,000,000.

The Boston bank statement shows that surplus reserve here increased $873,286. The gain in New York was $806,230.

Stock exchanges opened an hour later than usual today out of respect to the nation's Vera Cruz dead.

The Bell Company this week reports its output for the first ten months of the present fiscal year to have been 50,272,000 cubic feet, compared with 35,843,000 cubic feet for the same period last year, a gain of more than 40 per cent.

Girl Drops Match, Saves Fingers, But Auto Is Destroyed

Because a young woman refused to hold a match when it threatened to burn her fingers, a $2,000 automobile, owned by Albert L. Wells of No. 61 Hancock street, Dorchester, was destroyed by fire early today.

Wells and a party of friends reached the corner of Centre and Weld streets, West Roxbury, about 1 o'clock, when the car was stalled. The young woman refused to hold a match in order that an investigation might be made. She dropped the match into the gasoline tank.

FILENE FAVORS 'HOME' GOING BY U. S. IRISHMEN

LONDON, May 11.—Edward A. Filene, a prominent Boston merchant, returning from a week's visit to Lord Aberdeen, Governor General of Ireland, extolled the idea of a homecoming week for Irish-Americans to be held in Dublin during the month of August.

Mr. Filene, who originated the plan, believes the reunion will be a powerful inducement to Irish-Americans to visit the motherland. He predicts that Dublin will be crowded with home-comers from Boston and other Irish centres in America during the month of August.

"Another reason for my visit," said Mr. Filene, "was to prepare the way for the delegates from the American Chamber of Commerce to the International Congress in Paris on June 3 next. The purpose of the congress, the first such ever held, it to take steps toward the standardization of commercial methods the world over, and to establish closer co-operation between the commercial powers of the principal foreign trading nations.

"I have just cabled to the American Chamber of Commerce an invitation to fifty delegates to come as the guests of the London Chamber of Commerce on the return trip from Paris, June 9, when the Boston and London delegates to the International Congress will cross to Paris together."

Landlady's Bravery Saves Life of Girl; $2,000 Lynn Fire

The bravery of Mrs. Elizabeth Brown saved the life of Miss Marguerite Spencer, twenty-one, when a $2,000 fire in a wooden building occupied by the former as a lodging house at No. 62 Johnson street, Lynn, was swept by fire.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Brown, who aroused seven other lodgers. When she arrived in the street, Mrs. Brown discovered that Miss Spencer had not left the burning building. She rushed back and came out with the half-conscious girl in her arms.

The police and firemen believe the fire was of incendiary origin. About a year ago Mrs. Brown saved the life of Benjamin F. Bray in another fire.

Roosevelt Proclaims an American Doctrine

In an exclusive interview with a correspondent of the AMERICAN at Para, Brazil, Colonel Roosevelt speaks with characteristic vigor of the proposition to repeal the Canal Tolls law.

The former President gives new expression to his sturdy Americanism when he says of the exemption law:

"It should not be repealed. There is no question that we have a legal, and as unquestionably a moral, right to exempt our coastwise traffic from tolls."

In this conviction Colonel Roosevelt is at one with Mr. Taft. Republicans in the Senate who are considering voting for the repeal bill will thus find themselves running counter to the expressed views of the two living ex-Presidents of their party—the representatives of the two wings of that organization which, when united, was so long invincible.

Colonel Roosevelt no longer, however, speaks as a Republican. Such members of the Progressive Party as may have questioned his continuing loyalty to that organization will be gratified to find him quoting its platform as his political gospel and guide. Reiterating his protest against repeal, Colonel Roosevelt goes on to say:

"But if this is contested by any power interested with which we have an arbitration treaty, we should arbitrate, for we have explicitly stated that the interpretation of treaties is a proper subject for arbitration.

"But to submit our cause to arbitration when we believe it just is one thing, and to abandon it in advance of arbitration is an entirely different thing."

Doubtless Mr. Roosevelt will be amazed to learn that not only has the Administration abandoned "our cause" in advance of arbitration, but actually abandoned it without any demand from a foreign power for its abandonment.

Only two days ago Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, solemnly declared in the Senate that not a single foreign power had protested against the exemption law or demanded its repeal.

Senator Stone's recognized position as the representative of the Administration, no less than his committee chairmanship, gives this statement the stamp of authority and truth.

There can, therefore, be no arbitration, for there is no foreign power with whom to arbitrate. The United States cannot arbitrate with itself.

Continuing, Colonel Roosevelt says:

"We Progressives explicitly stated in our platform that we believed the coastwise traffic should be free from tolls.

"Our platform was a promise which we solemnly made, and not for the purpose of using it in an effort to get power and cynically abandon this promise afterward.

"We regarded it as a covenant with the people and a solemn obligation."

We heartily commend this utterance to the attention of House Democrats who repudiated and Senate Democrats who plan the repudiation of their platform pledge. No party which connives at such repudiation can long last in the face of a party regarding its platform as "a covenant with the people and a solemn obligation." The proposition denounced by President Wilson, but upon which he later acted, that a platform is merely "molasses to catch flies" cannot long maintain a party against honest opposition.

Democratic faces should redden with shame, honest Democratic hearts be bowed in confusion when the ex-President makes this canstic and truthful explanation of the Administration's hurried surrender before the enemy even attacked:

"However, the repeal is not asked on the ground that justice demands it.

"It is asked on the ground that to take this action would help us in carrying out the feeble, timid, involved course of conduct that for over a year has masqueraded as the foreign policy of the American Government.

"We are asked to surrender our rights in a canal we built with our money, with the effort of our citizens, which is the greatest engineering feat of all ages, so that, forsooth, some other nation may play on our behalf the game we are too weak to play ourselves. Such a plea is sheer nonsense."

Not one word of that acrid and stinging characterization of the Administration's foreign policy and the reason for its surrender of America's greatest public work can be controverted. It will ring most true to those best acquainted with the facts.

Colonel Roosevelt's first communication to the American people upon his emergence from the South American jungle, being made through the AMERICAN, has already reached those he desired to address. The response will be immediate, and, we doubt not, effective, at Washington. The distinguished ex-President, possessing probably a larger personal following than any living American today, enunciates with convincing force the belief which day by day the AMERICAN has been urging upon the people.

To Live Is to Fight

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

TO live means to fight!

This may not be agreeable to universal peace advocates, but it is the evouchment of science.

In his new book on "The Mechanics of Life," Felix Le Dantec, professor in the Sorbonne, with whose atheistic views I have no sympathy, but toward whose scientific knowledge all the world is respectful, lays down this law:

I find Mr. Le Dantec's development of this theme to be as interesting as a good story and a great deal more important.

He takes a walk on the seashore when the tide is out and, digging up a crab from the wet sand with his cane, he throws himself into a fencing attitude and begins to make passes at the astonished and irritated animal. The crab faces the music and, with his pincers erect, is ready for his aggressor at every turn.

Mr. Le Dantec's scientific soul (although, in strictness, he would deny that he has any soul) is delighted.

"One would say," he exclaims, "that the cane and the crab are united by an invisible mechanism so that to each movement of the end of the cane corresponds instantly, and with precision, a movement of the crab, thanks to which the defence is always directed exactly toward the enemy."

Now this conduct of the poor crab badgered by an inquisitive and impertinent savant is, Mr. Le Dantec finds, "perfectly anthropomorphic," that is to say, in plain words, just what a man would do in similar circumstances, and he likens it in particular to the sparring of a pair of bruisers in the boxing ring.

Those who have followed Mr. Le Dantec thus far may not see that they are much advanced toward a comprehension of the statement that all life is a fight, or an act of defence. But follow his next step and you may at least find new food for thought.

The examples of the irritated crab and the watchful boxer are, he admits, open to the objection that in them intelligence enters into play, and what is wanted is proof that life exhibits the same defensive acts and attitudes when intelligence is not in question. The proof he offers will surprise you. Here it is:

How does it happen that a man, a young lamb or chicken, stands erect? This phenomenon is the result of a prodigious assemblage of factors. One may say that all parts of the individual collaborate to produce the vertical attitude, and if the co-ordination of parts is destroyed, as by a sudden contusion, or a pistol shot, the animal falls. The cause of the erect attitude is the attraction of gravitation.

That attraction acts as an aggressive force which is resisted by the living body. If there were no attraction of gravitation man could not stand erect because he could not fall.

The same opposition to gravitation is shown by a tree. Because the earth's attractions tends to pull it down the tree goes up. Its life is a fight against gravity, a struggle against an opposing force. A lifeless object like a stone yields to gravity and falls down because it is drawn down. The living object, by virtue of the principle of life, reacts against the force and stands, or grows, up when gravity pulls it down.

It takes the defensive attitude of the crab and of the pugilist, but its action betrays no conscious intelligence as theirs does.

I cannot undertake to give here a complete summary of Mr. Le Dantec's argument, but there is another part of it which needs to be mentioned. The struggle between the living organism and the inimical forces that attack it is an imitation of them, but an imitation in reverse, so to speak. The growing tree imitates the force of gravity, but in an exactly contrary sense.

If you do not read the book you may, at least, find much mental exercise in pondering over what we have above borrowed from it; and if you do read it, I, for my own part, would advise you not to accept his conclusion that there is nothing about a man that physics and chemistry cannot explain. But when that conclusion has been rejected there will be an addition to your knowledge and to your stock of material for thought.

How a Poor Girl Saved France

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

IN these suffrage days it is interesting to remember that four hundred and eighty-five years ago Joan of Arc made her famous march on Orleans.

On the throne of what was left of France sat, as if in mockery of his royal office, the young weakling known as Charles the Seventh, a man without energy.

The political situation was pathetic. Everything north and east of the Loire was English, and Orleans, hotly besieged by the enemy from across the Channel, seemed doomed.

And Orleans was the last French stronghold. With Orleans gone, all was gone. The fortunes of the country were at their very lowest ebb. The fighting men were exhausted, and France stood face to face with national extinction.

Then it was that three women stepped out of the shadows into the limelight—Mary of Anjou, the Queen; Agnes Sorel, the courtesan, and Joan of Arc, the wonderful "Maid of Orleans."

Mary and Agnes forced the irresolute King to hold his ground at Orleans, thereby anchoring, as it were, the French cause when it was beginning to drift upon the reefs of destruction, while, in the meantime, Joan started out for the rescue of the hard-pressed city, setting out on the 25th, she entered Orleans on the 29th, and by the 7th of May the siege was raised.

Orleans was saved. The English invasion, that had threatened to engulf all France, began immediately to recede, and the haughtiest nation on the footstool saw its mailed hosts falling back before the genius and valor of a young peasant girl.

Following one another in rapid succession came the brilliant victories of Jergeau, Troyes and Patay, culminating in the coronation at Rheims of the King whose kingdom had been so gloriously saved.

Burned to death in the market place at Rouen, May 30, 1431, Joan left a name that can perish only with the extinction of the human race itself. Here is one of the most famous names on earth. More has been written about her than of any other person in history, Napoleon alone excepted.

We probably will never know the real truth about Joan's character. Was she the victim of hallucinations, or did she simply resort to the "Revelations" as a ruse by which she might the more effectually brace up and encourage her down-hearted countrymen? We do not know. But we know this, that the peasant girl of Domremy saved France from being wiped off the map by the advancing tide of English ambition.

Write an Argument Against the Proposed Repeal of Free Panama Canal Tolls for American Ships and Win a Prize.

The AMERICAN will make awards of $50, $25 and $10 for the best statements, of not more than three hundred words each, AGAINST REPEALING THE LAW WHICH NOW PERMITS AMERICAN COASTWISE SHIPS TO PASS THROUGH THE PANAMA CANAL FREE OF TOLL CHARGE.

Each competitor must send a copy of his or her argument to the United States Senator from his or her State and one copy to the Boston AMERICAN.

The copy sent to the AMERICAN must contain the full name and address of the writer and a statement that the writer PERSONALLY BELIEVES in the argument he or she writes, and that a copy of the argument has been sent to the Senators from the citizen's State.

All statements must be received on or before May 15, 1914.

Full information may be obtained bearing on both sides of this controversy by applying to your Senator or Congressman for the speeches in Congress on the subject, or by addressing Toll Contest Editor, Boston AMERICAN.

Does Marriage Change the Character?

The Idea That Marriage Is a Miracle Worker Is Generally Accepted by the Unthinking.

By DOROTHY DIX

A MAN asks this question:

"Does marriage change the character for the better?"

That depends on the individual man or woman. When we are young our natures are fluid. They may be compared to the juice of a grape, and marriage may be likened to the fermentation process. Some it turns into sound wine. Others it turns into vinegar.

No experience of life leaves us just where it found us. We are either the better or the worse for it, and this is particularly true of marriage, which is the greatest of all human experiences.

That is why marriage makes or mars a man or woman.

The idea that matrimony is some sort of a miracle worker is very generally accepted by the unthinking, and it is responsible for more suffering and more broken hearts than anything else in the world.

A man will be caught by a pretty face of a girl whom he knows to be silly, vain, selfish and frivolous. He knows that these qualities in a wife will make any man miserable, yet he goes along and marries her under the delusion that marriage will change her character and convert her into a wise, intelligent, unselfish, devoted helpmate. Of course marriage does nothing of the kind. It doesn't put brains into an empty head, or a heart into a sawdust filled doll. He gets what he marries. Not something else.

In like manner a girl falls in love with a handsome youth, who is a drunkard, or a gambler, or lazy and shiftless, and she marries him believing that marriage will change his character. She thinks that as soon as the words of the wedding ceremony are said above him he will never thirst for a highball again, nor long for his old gay companions, and that he will immediately become thrifty, industrious and domestic, but nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand nothing of the kind happens, and the marriage estate of the man is worse than his single.

In reality marriage only accentuates character. It is a crucial experience that brings out whatever is the strongest note in a man's or woman's nature, whether this is good or bad. But it does not alter this characteristic. If it has any effect upon it at all it is to exaggerate it.

For example, if a woman is a narrow, prejudiced fool, marriage does not make her broad-minded and wise. On the other hand, as the years go by she gets narrower, more prejudiced and sillier, because the very facts of married life tend to confine a woman's interest to her home, her husband and her children, and unless she has the broad outlook for herself she is sure to have her horizons bounded by just the things of her every-day life.

But the woman of wide sympathies, of big brain and intelligence finds that marriage promotes her spiritual growth, so that she grows bigger, wiser, tenderer every day that she lives. Her character has been no more changed than the little, narrow woman's has. Both have just been quickened by marriage into being more completely what nature out them out to be.

Men show precisely the same characteristics under the ordeal of matrimony. If a man is a drunkard or a roue by nature the inevitable disagreeable features of matrimony, the clash of different natures together, the fret and crying of a sickly child or an ill-managed house will drive him to the saloon for comfort, or his wife's fading beauty gives him excuse for attentions to younger and fairer women. Marriage with its attendant ills is an incentive to wrongdoing to such men rather than a preventive.

But there are other men whose dominant characteristic is loyalty and sense of duty, and when these men marry, no matter how wild a life they may have led beforehand, they settle down into models of domesticity. The knowledge of a woman's dependence on them, and their obligation to the helpless little children they bring into the world, brings out all that is best, and strongest, and truest in them.

It is common observation how often a woman who has been a pretty and attractive looking girl develops into a slouchy, shiftless dowd after she is married, and how many women, whom no one suspects of having a temper concealed about their persons when they were girls, turn into nagging shrews of wives. Matrimony didn't change these women's characters. It simply gave them liberty to develop what they were. After she had caught her man the lazy girl no longer felt it incumbent upon her to keep herself neat and tidy. After she was safely married the ill tempered girl felt free to be as disagreeable as she pleased.

In the same way the man who was lavish as a suitor and makes a tight-wad of a husband did not develop suddenly into a miser. He was naturally stingy and matrimony simply accentuated his desire to save, because it costs money to support a family.

Marriage does not change people. Husbands and wives do not change us. They only help us go a little faster up hill—or down. We decide the course for ourselves. If we change for the better we change for ourselves. So far as character goes we are all self-made. And most of us have mighty little room to be proud of the job.

Equanimity—The Fine Art of Keeping Well

By ELBERT HUBBARD

HEALTH is the most natural thing in the world. It is natural to be healthy because we are a part of Nature—we are Nature.

Nature is trying hard to keep us well, because she needs us. Nature needs man so he will be useful to other men.

The rewards of life are for service; and the penalties of life are for selfishness.

If you have health, you probably will be happy; and if you have health and happiness, you will have all the wealth you need, even if not all you want.

Human service is the highest form of self-interest for the person who serves.

We preserve our sanity only as we forget self in service. To centre on one's self, and forget our relationship to society is to summon misery, and misery means disease.

Unhappiness is an irritant. It affects the heartbeats or circulation first; then the digestion, and the person is ripe for two hundred and nineteen diseases, and six hundred and forty-two complications.

Ninety-nine people out of a hundred who go to a physician have no organic disease, but are merely suffering from some functional disorder, caused by their own indiscretion.

Individuals who have organic diseases nine times out of ten are suffering from the accumulated evil effects of medication.

That is to say, most diseases are the result of medication which has been prescribed to relieve and take away a beneficent and warning symptom on the part of Nature.

Most of the work of doctors in the past has been to prescribe for symptoms, the difference between actual disease and a symptom being something that the average man does not even yet know.

And the curious part is that on these points all physicians, among themselves, are fully agreed, what I say here being merely truism.

The people you see waiting in the lobbies of doctors' offices are, in a vast majority of cases, suffering through poisoning caused by an excess of food. Associated with this goes the bad results of imperfect breathing, irregular sleep, lack of exercise and improper stimulants or the thought of fear, jealousy or hate.

All of these things, or any one of them, will, in very many persons, cause fever, chills, cold feet, congestion and faulty elimination.

To administer drugs to a man suffering from malnutrition caused by a desire to "get even" and a lack of fresh air, is simply to compound his troubles, shuffle his maladies, and get him ripe for the other cone and scalpel.

Most so-called "disease" is self-limiting and tends to cure itself.

The one theme of Ecclesiastes is moderation.

Buddha wrote it down that the greatest word in any language is "equanimity."

William Morris said that the finest blessing of life was systematic useful work.

St. Paul declared that the greatest thing in life was love.

Moderation, equanimity, work and love—you need no other physician.

In so stating I lay down a proposition agreed to by all physicians, which was expressed by Hippocrates, the father of medicine, and then repeated in better phrase by Epictetus, the slave to his pupil, the great Roman Emperor, Marcus Aurelius, and which has been known to every thinking man and woman since: Moderation, Equanimity, Work and Love.
